A Wise Governor
All Kinds of Women

Lenin Insane? As a Fox!

—By Arthur Brisbane—

The big problem facing this country is UNEMPLOYMENT. Governor Blaine of Wisconsin knows it, if others do not. His message to the Legislature says:

"I submit that Wisconsin citizens, willing to work, should be given every opportunity to work. I recommend that the Industrial Commission, through the free employment offices maintained by the State, co-operate with the Highway Commission in absorbing the unemployed in road construction."

The Governor wants to give work to the 70,000 men out of work in Wisconsin, and he is planning to do it in such a way as not to interfere with the supply of farm labor. Governors in other States, take notice.

All kinds of women are in the world, now as in old days. Florence E. Allen, lady judge of Common Pleas in Cleveland, yesterday sentenced Robert Monsera to life imprisonment. Three women were on the jury that convicted Monsera of murder in the second degree.

Before woman suffrage men said, "Women are too sentimental; not fit to be judges or jurors."

Women, in fact, are often severe judges. While men captured by Indians feared the old squaws more than the young warriors.

The vestal virgins of Rome every year threw into the Tiber an imitation man made of straw as a sacrifice. They probably threw in real men earlier.

It was an African queen, Tomiris, that chopped off the head of Cyrus and dipped it in a goatskin filled with human blood. And it was a lady that told her daughter to insist upon having the head of John the Baptist—nothing else would do.

Women are gentler than men, but not too gentle and not ultrasentimental. They reflect the average civilization.

Young lawyers and young law students, here is cheering news:

For the first time a lawyer has just received a flat fee of one million. John B. Stanchfield of No. 120 Broadway, New York, is the lawyer. The Marshall Field estate paid the money. It was a "straight fee," for personal services, without any "costs," etc.

Some other lawyers were tacked on, in the neighborhood of another million, and other lawyers got stray bits of $100,000 each.

John B. Stanchfield now stands as Beteigeuse, the Alpha star in the constellation of profitable law practice. Progress, since Rufus Choate, greatest lawyer of his day, apologized for charging $25,000 in a will case. His excuse was that he had studied the question involved for thirty years.

Paris says Lenin is insane. In the language of that great canoodler, "Ted," Lenin is about "as crazy as a fox," judging by his handling of the Allies, the Wrangels and others trying to make him pay the Czar's debts. However, the report of his insanity may be based on fact. It is doubtful whether any man in history has thought so intently, concentrated his mind with such intensity on the theory of government. Such intense concentration has often led to insanity.

Paris says Lenin is locked up in one room of his palace, where he spends his time boasting. He also sounds not impossible, for a most frequent manifestation of insanity is a complete change in temperament. Modest women, becoming insane, use the worst language, and modest men, insane, think they are Napoleon.

A female bandit in Chicago holds up men, robs them, with a sharp knife pressed against their ribs, kisses them before she leaves them. Harpies and sirens did worse than that.

An organization from Brooklyn petitions Congress to pass a law compelling women that have no children to work so many hours a week in houses of those that have children.

Mrs. Adamsowski paid Mrs. Yonka $1,000 for "uttering a curse." Mrs. Yonka is in jail, although Mrs. Adamsowski says she feels better.

Bud Loomis, boy in his teens, who had twenty-five pistols in his room, admits that he and his young friends "worked at the nights a week, and made it a rule never to make less than seven robberies a night."

Such news items as those immediately above indicate the degree of "civilization" in 1921. The world will need a MILLION, MILLION years that scientists say are ahead of us to get rid of its many weaknesses.

Utah passes a law forbidding high heels. First offense, fine of twenty-five to five hundred dollars; second offense, five hundred to one thousand dollars, with thirty days to one year in prison.

That law will not work. Centuries ago they tried by law to stop wearing shoes with long points, and the points got so long the wearers had to tie them to their knees.

It is pitiful to see old women and young girls with feet and ankles twisted out of shape, hobbling along trying to dance on high heels. But law won't stop it. If men would laugh at it THAT would stop it.

NEAL SAYS TAYLOR SET SHOP ABLAZE

Saw Knowles Block Fire and Became Temporarily Insane, Police Charge

Worcester, Jan. 20.—The direct charge that Night Watchman William Taylor, now under arrest, set the fire in the Merrifield estate buildings while suffering from emotional insanity was made by State Fire Marshal George C. Neal today.

In an oral report to Governor Cox, Marshal Neal said Taylor set this blaze after seeing the Knowles Building in flames, and that a partial confession had been secured.

Another man is under suspicion and an arrest expected, Neal added.

He said the State Police were convinced this was the only incendiary fire in the conflagration of yesterday, the Knowles Building fire having been started by spontaneous combustion.

The partial confession, according to the fire marshal, was made by Taylor to State Officers Robert E. Mott and Edward J. McCarthy. The marshal said that the man on seeing the flames from the Knowles building became obsessed with the desire to start another fire, and did so.

The marshal failed to give any further details as to the other man under suspicion.

OTHER FIRES DUE TO SPARKS.

He declared that the State police were convinced, as a result of their investigations, that with the exception of the Knowles and Merrifield building fires, all the blazes were started by sparks.

While admitting that the materials were entirely consumed on the floor of the Knowles Building, where the first blaze originated, the State police claim they know what these materials were. In consequence

HOPES FADE

New York, Jan. 20.—Joseph J. Ryan, son of Thomas Fortuna Ryan, left a lawsuit to Dorothy L. Whiteford, 20-mates of what Miss Whiteford will receive from Ryan's estate dwindled rapidly yesterday. He made her his residuary legatee in a will which cut off his wife, Nannie Morse Ryan, with $100.

The question raised yesterday was: "Will there be a residue?"

Some hazarded the opinion that before the final settlement of Joseph J. Ryan's estate, the $100 left to Mrs. Nannie Morse Ryan might surpass the legacy of the twenty-three-year-old member of "The Royal Vagabond" chorus, favored in the will.

At any rate, John J. Robinson, Woolworth Building lawyer, who represents Miss Whiteford, said yesterday:

"There probably will be a contest if Mrs. Ryan doesn't bring it, the special guardian whom the Surrogate must appoint for Mr. Ryan's children undoubtedly will. A Mr Clark, a lawyer, and cousin of Mrs. Ryan, is a candidate for appointment, but I think it safe to say that any guardian would bring a contest.

"I have already heard of some $4,000 or $5,000 local debts of Mr. Ryan from the law office of DeLancey Nicoll.

"I understand Mr. Ryan's father, Thomas F. Ryan, has claims of $40,000 to $50,000 against his son's estate representing advances to his son in his lifetime. These probably will be pressed against the estate."

In the face of these items, the residue which Mr. Ryan left to Miss Whiteford, estimated Monday at from $60,000 to $71,000, will be greatly reduced, even should the will be sustained after a court test.

TRAIN DERAILED NEAR SOUTH STATION

Commuters Forced to Walk to Work When Tender Leaves Rails Outside Shed

Several hundred passengers on the Fall River boat line train of the New Haven Railroad, due at the South station at 8:30 a. m., were thrown into confusion today when the engine tender jumped the tracks as the train was crossing a switch, about 500 yards west of the trainshed.

No one was injured, but the accident interfered with traffic on the Providence Division and Sub-Division One for more than three hours.

Trains from Jamaica Plain, Readville, Sharon, Canton, Taunton, Dedham and other points, carrying commuters, were greatly delayed.

All passengers on New Haven trains coming through the Back Bay station were forced to alight there and go into the city by trolley or by Boston & Albany trains from Huntington avenue.

What caused the tender to jump the tracks has not been determined. The engine and all the cars held to the rails, but the tender toppled in such a manner as to tie up at least three of the tracks.

Wreckers were at once sent to the scene.

The only through train that was interfered with was the 8:30 to New York which was canceled. The passengers instead were allowed to go to the metropolis and way stations on the Washington Colonial Express, to which extra cars were added.

The engineer of the Fall River train was R. Gotham, and George Shott was the fireman.

By International News Service.

London, Jan. 20.—A detachment of more than fifty policemen from Scotland Yard, all heavily armed, made a series of anti-Sinn Fein raids throughout London during the night.

15,000 Trades Workers Now Out in Protest of 10 Per Cent. Wage Cut

Fifteen thousand workmen, representing twenty-seven allied building trades, went on strike today to protest against the proposed 10 per cent. wage cut.

Only those employed by contractors in the Building Trades Employers' Association quit work, E. A. Johnson, secretary of the Building Trades Council, stated.

They are approximately one half of the men working at building trades in Greater Boston, he said.

The other fifteen thousand, employed by independent contractors, he said, remained at work, except where adverse weather or other conditions prevailed.

A conference of the employers and workmen to discuss their difficulties probably will be held Friday, according to present plans. This conference was suggested by Mayor Peters and it is expected it will be held in the executive chamber at City Hall.

Secretary Johnson of the trades council said that the strikers were ready to submit their grievances.

This is the second time the Mayor has taken the initiative in a building trades strike. The agreement under which the men have been working until today was signed June 27, 1919.

ALLEN TO TAKE FIGHT TO BEACON HILL

Announces He Will Seek Legislative Action to Curb Powers of District Attorneys

Attorney-General J. Weston Allen followed up his attack upon District Attorneys Nathan A. Tufts and Joseph C. Pelletier today by announcing he would seek immediate legislative action on his recommendations that the office of District Attorney be stripped of certain of its powers.

Special Assistant Attorney-General Henry F. Hurlburt also returned to the attack, charging that Thomas District Attorney of Middlesex County (Mr. Tufts) had abused his powers in his prosecuting cases.

Mr. Hurlburt said he was convinced of this from his own experience as a criminal prosecutor.

The sensation was in addition to the charges Henry F. Hurlburt and Allen made yesterday against Tufts—charging him with lying in the Barney case, piano-holding cases of men who should be sentenced, and being otherwise guilty of misconduct.

Attorney-General Allen stated he would confer today with Frank G. Allen, president of the Senate, and Speaker Benjamin L. Gould Young of the House of Representatives.

Mr. Allen today read and signed his determination to have the special cases of stock swindling and [illegible] thievery which he broke up [illegible] accomplished in Middlesex and Suffolk counties.

"DETERMINED TO GET THEM."

"Are there many such cases?" he was asked. Henry F. Hurlburt, who has been acting as his special assistant, and made the investigation on which Attorney-General Allen is largely based his report, answered as follows:

"A comparatively few. Those being prosecuted."

State House officials took this as an indication that scores of men will at large in the two counties [illegible] indictment if Attorney-General Allen

Big Fire Photo 'Scoop' by Boston American

Once again the Boston American is ahead of the field in presenting the big news first.

While other newspapers were printing maps and diagrams showing the location of the Worcester fire, the Boston American was on the street with actual photographs of the conflagration.

These photographs were obtained by G. Frank Radway, staff photographer of the Boston American, following a remarkable trip to Worcester in a fast automobile, returning to this office with the pictures at 11 o'clock.

As a result, the Boston American, containing reproductions of thrilling scenes at the great fire, was being sold by newsboys shortly after other photographers, who used trains, arrived at their offices with negatives.

The photographic "scoop," one of the biggest in recent years, was accomplished despite zero temperatures which delayed trains, hampered firemen and caused much suffering.

Radway, with two reporters, left the office of the Boston American in a powerful car at 8:06 yesterday morning. Speeding over the road, with the mercury dropping steadily, the big machine covered the forty-five miles in one hour and twenty minutes.

Working with haste, Radway made the photographs, allowing thirty minutes for the purpose, and the return trip was then started. On this journey five minutes was clipped from the running time, the car pulling up at the Boston American office one hour and fifteen minutes after leaving Worcester.

Judge Emery said this was certainly a delicate matter and he was ever called upon to act in. A bicycle given by the client to his former sweetheart was recovered, but, as far as the judge knows, the teeth are still doing duty in her mouth.

ALLEN TAKES FIGHT ON DISTRICT ATTORNEY TO LEGISLATURE

TUFTS ABUSED HIS POWER, HURLBURT SAYS

cessful in his fight to get power to prosecute them.

"Are you afraid some of these men will leave Massachusetts pending the outcome of this struggle for jurisdiction between officials?" Mr. Hurlburt was asked.

"We are not afraid," he replied. "We are determined to get them. The power of District Attorneys to prosecute cases has been abused."

Attorney-General Allen's report of yesterday included a supplementary report of Special Assistant Attorney-General Hurlburt. Mr. Hurlburt devoted himself to a consideration of affairs in Middlesex County.

Beside a general condemnation of Mr. Tufts' administration, he charged specifically that Tufts and Police Inspector O'Halloran of the Newton police were guilty of improper conduct in connection with the arrest of Herman L. Barney, slayer of Patrolman Delininger, after the young auto bandit had fled State Prison.

200 CASES PENDING.

Reviewing the history of auto theft prosecutions in Middlesex County, Hurlburt pointed out that only Barney was jailed for a long term. He said "Chick" Dillon was sentenced to the House of Correction, another defendant fined $200, and a fourth case nol-prossed.

He charged that he found 100 cases of men convicted of crime still hanging fire in Middlesex County, due to the failure of Mr. Tufts to move for sentence.

That portion of Attorney-General Allen's report referring to District Attorney Pelletier reviewed the efforts of Mr. Allen to get into Suffolk County Grand Jury rooms and Pelletier's refusal to recognize his authority.

The Attorney-General said he wished this authority in order to prosecute stock swindling and auto theft cases, yet when he appointed Hurlburt and Assistant Attorney-General Hurwitz to conduct a Grand Jury hearing Pelletier told him he had informed the Grand Jury that Hurlburt and Hurwitz were outside their rights.

This, said Mr. Allen today, prejudiced the Grand Jury against him, and made action at present impossible.

ATTACK PELLETIER'S BILL.

He reminded the Legislature that Mr. Pelletier last Saturday filed a bill which would keep him out of Grand Jury rooms and all other attorney-generals out of Grand Jury rooms.

"If this bill and my recommendations both fail I shall again take up the prosecution of auto theft and stock swindling cases," said the Attorney-General today.

"But I feel that in view of the questions raised I should be given specific power to summon special sessions of the Grand Jury and that certain powers of all district attorneys should be taken away."

District Attorney Tufts today denied Mr. Hurlburt's charges that he or Inspector O'Halloran made any promises of "preferred" treatment to Barney in placing him under arrest.

He declared Hurlburt's statement

"Prosecutions Will Be Continued"

"If the District Attorney of Suffolk District does not succeed in securing legislation which will give him the power to bar the Attorney-General from the courts in criminal cases, and if the Attorney-General is given sufficient authority to enable Special Assistant Attorney-General Hurlburt and other members of the department to continue the investigation authorized by the Governor and Council, the prosecution of fraudulent promoters and automobile thieves will be continued until present conditions have been corrected."—From Attorney-General Allen's report to the Legislature in auto thieves' case.

that Barney was at large for six weeks in Massachusetts after his escape "reflected no credit on the Attorney-General's office."

Inspector O'Halloran, who is now employed by the Storeg Mutual Protective Association of Boston, said today he had no regrets.

DENIED PROMISES.

He denied any promises were made. And as to the statement given out by District Attorney Tufts, O'Halloran replied: "Well, you know, we had another man to catch," meaning Harry A. Manster, another "lifer," who escaped with Barney.

Mr. Hurlburt said today that if Mr. Allen wished it, he would be glad to testify before the legislative heads as to the need of laws to restrict the powers of district attorneys.

"We must no longer tolerate the condition which makes the courts subordinate to the district attorney," he added.

He said district attorneys should not have power to nolle prose or file at their own discretion; and that they should not have the power to delay sentence by failure to make the proper motion in court.

Attorney-General Allen's report said if District Attorney Pelletier's bill had been in force for a year the Attorney-General's office would have been unable to prosecute Ponzi, the Old Colony Foreign Exchange, the German marks dealers or the auto thieves.

Mr. Hurlburt's supplementary report on Middlesex County said: "I question the judgment of the district attorney in permitting so many pleas from these (auto theft) defendants with the understanding of using them as witnesses."

ACCUSES TUFTS OF POLITICS.

"I believe in all such cases the use of defendants as witnesses should be with the approval of them court, and in the event of not using them as witnesses they should be sentenced under plea of guilty, or allowed to retract their pleas."

Hurlburt criticized the manner in which Herman L. Barney was arrested at Northampton in the Summer of 1920, after his escape from State Prison.

He declared Tufts and Inspector O'Halloran carried on negotiations with the fugitive, without first arresting him, and did not inform other proper authorities of his whereabouts.

Hurlburt intimated that the reticence showed the Tufts wished to get credit for the capture of Barney for use in a campaign to get the Republican nomination for Governor, and that the negotiations with the slayer hurt the dignity of the State.

In conclusion he said: "It seems to me that Mr. Tufts and Mr. O'Halloran were guilty of improper conduct, to say the least, in their respective offices."

Attorney-General Allen in his report, commenting on the Barney incident, said:

"There was no occasion to treat with Barney for his return. He was within the jurisdiction of the Commonwealth. The State does not bend her head to listen to terms of surrender from escaped murderers within her own borders. The majesty of the law does not permit it."

Big Raid in Cork; Black and Tans Burn Houses

By International News Service.

Cork, Jan. 20.—Reprisal incendiarism broke out here today.

British soldiers and Black and Tans surrounded the entire area of the western part of the city and after searching many buildings burned two houses. It was declared that shots had been fired from these house last Saturday, wounding two detectives. The houses were occupied by Sinn Feiners.

The acting Lord Mayor of Cork conferred at length today with Major-General Sir Edward Strickland, commander of the British troops in this region. Afterwards there was talk of "drastic measures," which indicated that military authorities in Cork intended to seize prominent Republicans and hold them as hostages.

Bishop Cohalan Sees No Hope of Peace

By International News Service.

Manchester, England, Jan. 20.—"The Home rule law offers no hope for an enduring peace in Ireland," Bishop Cohalan of Cork was quoted as saying in an interview by the Guardian today.

The prelate, who is one of the most influential men in Cork, continued: "My first impression was that Eamon de Valera was home on a peace mission, but there seems to be no ground for hope in that direction so long as every attempt is taken as a sign of weakness. The position seems to be that England is unable to find a person in Southern Ireland who has even read the partition (home rule) law.

"If the election is held it is certain that an overwhelming majority of Sinn Feiners will sit in the Dublin Legislature. While the home rule law offers no hope for an enduring peace I advised its acceptance as a springboard from which we might jump to something better."

Irish Bombers Attack Troops in Dublin

Dublin, Jan. 20.—Two bold attacks against British military policemen were made here early today. In each instance the assault was made from ambush. Two persons were wounded, a Black and Tan policeman and a civilian.

Dublin Castle, in an official report on the fighting, said that bombs were used in both attacks. One fight occurred within one hundred yards of Dublin Castle and was a spectacular affray. When the first bomb was thrown, the Black and Tans drew revolvers and rifles and opened a heavy fire.

The village hall and eight houses were burned at Headford in reprisal for the recent ambush attack upon British policemen at Kilroe. The streets were cleared before the incendiarism began.

The British military and police authorities in Ireland will use Sinn Fein hostages to prevent attacks in the future. Dublin Castle formally announced today that hostages would be carried in all automobiles in which soldiers and black and tans are riding in certain parts of Ireland. The "hostage zone" will include the city and county of Dublin and the county of Meath, where the attacks have been especially numerous.

3 Months for Manning After Big Night

A liquor-inspired rampage landed John E. Manning of Wellesley in Dedham Court and later in jail today. He appeared in court in his shirt sleeves, and went to jail that way, shivering with cold.

His waistcoat, coat and overcoat were doffed somewhere along the primrose path which he and Francis W. McLaughlin, his chum, cut through Wellesley.

According to testimony they got drunk, disturbed the peace, had a fight and Manning rang in a false alarm.

Manning was given three months for the false alarm, and fined $10 for drunkenness. McLaughlin was fined $15 for drunkenness and disturbing the peace.

JAPS MINIMIZE SLAYING OF LANGDON

U. S. Officials Refuse to Be Balked by Anti-American Propaganda in Tokio

Washington, Jan. 20.—The gravity of the issue between the United States and Japan over the Langdon case cannot be minimized by propaganda of official or unofficial Japanese newspapers.

This was the positive view expressed by State and Navy Department officials when their attention was called to Tokio dispatches quoting Japanese newspapers as saying this government was placing too much importance on the killing of the naval officer.

If is admittedly probable, however, that the popular clamor raised against the United States by the Japanese press may make an early settlement of the case impossible.

Officials of both departments have recognized the efforts of the Japanese newspapers to influence the Japanese government to resist the demands of this country for "rectification" of the murder.

Half of Boston's Trades Workers Out in Protest of 10 Per Cent. Wage Cut

as a result of a conference called by the Mayor after the building trades workers had been out on strike.

Headquarters of the Building Trades Council at No. 166 Harrison avenue were filled today with the mechanics who had packed up their tools last night.

The strike followed a notice by members of the Employers' Association that, beginning today, the wage would be 90 cents an hour instead of $1, which the workers said had prevailed for the last year and a half. It was also proposed to pay only time and a half for overtime instead of double time, officers of the council said.

Men who are working for contractors not in the association, they declared, were still receiving the dollar an hour wage, with double pay for overtime.

Marble setters, including those employed by the associated contractors, Secretary Johnson said, were receiving even more than a dollar an hour—their wage having been fixed at $8.50 for an eight-hour day by an international agreement.

Whether picketing would be resorted to to enforce their strike could not be ascertained at the council's headquarters. It was a matter for the individual unions, officers said.

The strike committee, consisting of John Carroll, president of the council; James T. Moriarty, James A. Gould, Jeffrey Boudrot, Dennis Cummings and George E. Flynn, was in session today and arrangements for the council's participation in the Mayor's conference will be made by them.

PEGGY MARSH WEDS AND WINS SHARE IN BIG FIELD FORTUNE

NEW BRIDE WILL GET $100,000 HOUSE

Her Son by Henry Field, 2d, to Receive $50,000 Yearly for His Rearing

New York, Jan. 20.—Peggy Marsh, dainty and beautiful young actress, whose romantic association with the late Henry Field, 2d, made her one of the most talked of young women on two continents, is married!

Simultaneously with the announcement that the executors of the Marshall Field estate had recognized her child by Henry Field, 2d, came the statement today that the woman had become the wife of Albert L. Johnson of New York and Cleveland.

The marriage of the young woman, whose romance with the Field heir was of international interest, was in the nature of a semi-elopement and took place January 5 last in Greenwich, Ct.

ENDS BITTER LITIGATION

The story of the recognition of the four-year-old son of the Chelsea woman was contained in tre New York American today. This settlement ends bitter litigation and has enlisted the services of world-famous solicitors.

The Marshall Field heirs have agreed:

First—To pay $50,000 per year for the education and upkeep of young Henry Anthony Marsh.

Second—To provide for the use of Peggy Marsh (now Mrs. Johnson) a $100,000 mansion either in the United States or England.

Furthermore, it was stated that both Mr. Johnson and his bride have announced their intention of legally adopting Henry Anthony Marsh.

Mrs. Johnson is now recovering from an operation at a hospital here, while her son and his stepfather are living together at a hotel.

"The boy is a great kid, and he deserves the chance that his mother and I are going to give him," Johnson declared today.

Johnson admitted that his family, with the exception of his brother Joseph, did not exactly approve of his marriage.

"But that's all right," he declared. "They'll come round all right later. At any rate I am going to fight this thing out."

The bridegroom's father, Albert L. Johnson, died in 1901, leaving a big fortune. The son will inherit a considerable sum from his father's estate next October.

"My wife is the most wonderful girl in the world," the young bridegroom declared. "I know the right, she has had and the difficulties she has surmounted and I am with her through thick and thin."

BRIDEGROOM WELL KNOWN.

Albert Johnson is known to his friends in society and in other spheres where rich men tread as "Buster" Johnson. He is a son of Albert L. Johnson, brother of Tom L. Johnson, four times Mayor of Cleveland. Mr. Johnson died in July, 1901. A man of great wealth, he was president of the Nassau Railway Company (later merged with the B. R. T.), and backed his brother's famous three-cent fare experiments in Cleveland.

Young "Al" or "Buster," Johnson, to bring this story up to date, was an army aviator during the war. He won his wings as a pursuit instructor of aviation at Rockwell Field, San Diego, Cal. Before that he had been an instructor, broke in from the Navy and a number of various parts of the country.

BRIDE IS RECOVERING.

A week ago yeste day Peggy was taken suddenly ill with a severe attack of appendicitis. She was removed hurriedly to Miss Alston's Sanitarium in West Sixty-first street. The bridegroom was heart broken when told:

"Your wife is very ill. The chances are against her recovery."

Specialists were called in. That night Peggy was operated on.

She found her husband's hand in hers, when she came out of the ether. She smiled happily and peacefully and instantly began to recover. Yesterday she said:

"I am feeling wonderful. They tell me I will be discharged on Saturday. I know what caused my trouble at first.

On Sunday Peggy saw her new husband and her son in the hospital She introduced them grandly and little Henry "took" to his new daddy at once. Each day "Buster" Johnson has taken the boy to Miss Alston's

NEWTON FIRE AID SUMMONED TO WATERTOWN

Strand Theatre Building Is Burned When Gas Is Left Lighted

Two alarms were sounded for a fire discovered in the "Pan" a storage on the ground floor of the Strand Theatre Building at No. 47 Galen street, Watertown, early today.

When the apparatus arrived at the scene the blaze had worked to the upper floors and into the part of the building used by the theatre. Help was immediately summoned from the Newton fire department.

On the way to the fire one of the trucks of the Watertown department became disabled when a wheel rolled off the axle throwing several of the occupants to the street None of the crew was badly injured.

The blaze is thought to have started from a gas light left burning in the rear of the "Pan" when the wood work nearby became ignited.

The property is owned by Ira W Shapiro of Brookline. The damage done by the blaze is estimated at $5,000. An investigation of the origin of the fire is being conducted by the police and the fire department.

300 'Umbrellas' Up at Wellesley

The sun looked down on a queer sight today as the Freshman class at Wellesley, three hundred or more, marched to chapel under a cloud of three hundred umbrellas.

It was all due to the sophomores, who had issued a challenge to the freshmen to "carry umbrellas UP while on the campus between the hours of eight and four."

Of course, the freshmen did it, but they circumvented the malignity of the upper class by making tiny green parasols, ribless black affairs decorated with green streamers, and multi-colored umbrellas also dying the class green.

Even the sophomores admitted the effect was "stunning."

$25,000,000 TO BE PAID BY U. S. TO BRITAIN

Raeburn Coming to "Collect" for Transportation of American Troops

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Sir Ernest Raeburn, representing the government of Great Britain, will arrive in Washington within a few days to effect a settlement of British claims against the War Department amounting to approximately $25,000,000.

Great Britain's claim represents a part of the cost of transporting American troops to Europe during the World War, approximately 51 per cent. of the American expeditionary force having crossed the Atlantic in British bottoms.

A War Department appropriation, from which claims may be paid in cash, will be available until June 30, but it has not yet been determined whether the British claim will be met from this fund or charged against the $5,000,000,000 which Great Britain owes the United States. Secretary of War Baker stated today that the matter had not yet been brought officially to his attention and until he had made further investigation he was unable to say what funds might be used for liquidating the claim.

According to army officials, a similar claim now outstanding against the War Department total approximately $187,000,000. The claims arise chiefly from the transportation of American troops in foreign vessels and in vessels taken over by the Shipping Board and allocated to the War Department and from collisions at sea in which War Department craft have been involved.

Masters and Servants Swap Roles for Night

Washington, Jan. 20.—If society in other cities is looking for a novelty, it may follow the example of a prominent Washington family which has introduced a decidedly "peppy" innovation.

It was decided that masters and servants should change places for one night. "James, me man," became "Mr." "Sir" and "Honorable," and "Bridget" and "Marie" became "Lady" and "Madam" and, of course, vice versa.

The servants of the half dozen leading Washington households were invited—and they came—every one of them—and, Sh! Sh! (real scandal). It is said none other than a former high government dignitary answered the bell in the full regalia of the doorman when the servants were admitted at the front door for the first time in their lives.

The tables had been turned and "James" was considerably fussed, and there was no end to the surprises. On every hand the elite were bowing to and serving the servants.

It was a glorious and long-to-be-remembered night for the servants to step into the shoes of the wealthy and oppose to see how it felt.

There was an elaborate dinner, with the real madam, prominent matrons and society buds hustling back and forth from the kitchen to the dining room. No soup was spilled and the household economic courses taught at boarding schools proved that they must be worth while, judging from the repast served.

During the dinner entertaining orchestral strains came from the ballroom. Following the demi-tasse the real evening began. The dance was on. Incidentally, the wine cellar was opened.

Right at this juncture the "snoot" servants' lost their servile mien which they had struggled to maintain all evening. Good fellowship prevailed, until finally one could not tell who was servant and who was guest.

Anyway, it was a grand party and continued late into the night. "James" and "Bridget" slept the sleep of the leisure class, and arose as the leisure class do—about noon—though not to have breakfast served in bed, but to serve it.

WILL ASK DEATH PENALTY FOR MRS. PEETE

Woman Charged With Murder of Wealthy Miner Calm Before Prosecutor at Trial

By International News Service.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 20.—With a promise that a complete jury might be sworn in before nightfall, the prosecution and defence today resumed selection of the men who will decide the fate of Mrs. Louise Peete, charged with the murder of Jacob C. Denton, wealthy miner. The defendant finished her first day's ordeal calmly and with as rosy cheeks as if she had been on an outing at one of the beaches or on a jaunt in an automobile party driving through the fresh, brisk air.

Even when District Attorney Woolwine confirmed reports that he would ask for the death penalty in case the former Denver resident is convicted, Mrs. Peete did not become perturbed.

"Why should an innocent woman become alarmed and cringe and make a demonstration?" was her observation after the courtroom doors had been closed and she was taken back to the jail across the famous "Bridge of Sighs."

According to the jail attendants, she sleeps well and when alone does not give the faintest idea that she is today the most talked of woman on the Pacific coast because of the sensational nature of her case.

The rapidity with which temporary jurors were selected was commented on today by attorneys. It had been expected that because of the voluminous accounts of the charges, there would be several instances of prejudice shown. Only one of the first twelve examined was excused on this ground.

$500,000 LOSS, MAIL ROBBERY NEW ESTIMATE

Most of Loot Obtained at Chicago Negotiable Securities and Bonds

By International News Service.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—Loot obtained in the mail robbery at the Union Station here Tuesday may reach the value of $500,000 it was declared today as postoffice authorities continued their check of the contents of twelve sacks of registered mail stolen by the bandits.

Most of the loot was in bonds and negotiable securities, reports indicate. Several brokerage houses already have reported losses that swell the original estimate. Blair & Co., New York brokers, have reported a loss of $61,000, Ames, Emerich & Co., brokers, a loss of $8,000, and the Hurtis Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago loses $9,000.

Original estimates of the loss were purposely made low by postoffice officials, it has been learned, with expected to prevent all robberies from becoming too attractive to lawless men.

It has also been learned that approximately $197,000, mostly in currency of small denominations, was obtained by bandits in the mail robbery at Mount Vernon, Ill., last week

WHOLE FAMILY IN $6,000 FOR GRAND JURY

Brookline Cashier, Accused of $5,000 Theft, in Bad Physical Condition at Hearing

Southbridge, Jan. 20.—Miss Charlotte R. Foss, former trusted employe of the George C. Winter Estate Hardware Company, Inc., was held for the grand jury in $6,000 bail following a hearing before Judge Clark in the district court on a charge of larceny of $5,000 from the firm.

Miss Foss, who was arrested in Brookline Monday, showed plainly the effects of the nerve strain she has been under and was forced to lean upon the arm of the police matron for support as she entered the court.

No one was ready to obtain the bond required, she was taken to Worcester by Police Chief Brault.

Testimony given at the hearing by Maurice A. Taylor, president of the company, and Leland Ross, expert accountant, who has been auditing the books of the concern, showed Miss Foss had been acting as bookkeeper and cashier from February 14, 1920 to Dec. 4, 1920, when she quit.

Taylor testified she had done all the bookkeeping for the firm, attended to its disbursements and handled all receipts.

Ross gave evidence regarding the discrepancies he found to exist between the books of the concern, particularly between July 15 and the date Miss Foss left employment.

The shortage in the accounts so far discovered, testified the accountant, would approximate $5,000.

Other evidence given at the hearing was to the effect that Miss Foss had lived well while in Southbridge, maintaining an expensive flat on Twelfth street and employing a maid by day to care for her furnace, and frequently she motored to Boston in journey to and from the office.

PUPILS REBEL AT COURTESY LESSONS

Athol Boys Walk Out When Told to Remain After School to Learn Politeness

Athol, Jan. 20.—Compulsory lessons in courtesy, given by Miss Evelyn Ramsey, teacher of the senior class at the high school, have resulted in a walkout of boy students, a threatened sympathetic strikes of the girls, and a wrangle between parents, teachers and officials, in which politics are inextricably mixed.

According to the boys, the trouble started when Miss Ramsey intimated that they were as free of politeness as a fish is of hair. She furthermore was quoted as remarking that "if politeness couldn't be taught by parents at home, she would teach it."

In furtherance of this alleged determination Miss Ramsey was said to have ordered the boys to remain after school in order to life and manners of the late Lord Chesterfield.

With one exception the boys promptly took their hats and went away from there. The girls threatened to follow suit and an investigation was begun by Superintendent Ward and Principal Cutler. Miss Ramsey denied making any such action regarding politeness, and then various pupils were closeted with the school heads.

Parents of the boys have taken up the matter with the school committee, but as yet no official statement has been made to any one. The election of two school committee members is approaching and action is expected.

STUDENTS SAVE 3 THIN ICE VICTIMS

Girl and Two Boys Dragged From Charles River by Technology Men

Technology students rescued a thirteen-year-old girl and two sixteen-year-old boys from drowning in the Charles River, between the Harvard and College Farms Bridges, after the skaters had broken through thin ice.

Miss Ruth Hanson, No. 221 Bay State road, was the first victim to fall into the river.

By catching hold of the ice she managed to hold her head above water until Sherwood L. Berger, a Tech sophomore, crawled to the edge of the hole and, grasping her arms, pulled her to safety.

Paul Sullivan, son of John A. Sullivan of No. 216 Bay State road, a Boston Latin School student, and Harold Cassen, also at the Brookline High School, were immersed as the ice collapsed beneath them directly in the rear of Dr. Ransom's house.

Dr. Ransom procured a ladder and with the aid of E. W. Reynolds, W. S. Rivers, R. N. Vincent and R. G. Hindes, also Tech students, the boys were saved.

they have started chemists at work experimenting to discover if these materials could cause spontaneous combustion under given circumstances, according to the fire marshal.

The arrest of Taylor and the breaking out of three more fires last night served to draw the nerves of this Widow city to a higher tension today.

RHEUMATISM

Bartholomew Shea, 25 Union St., Everett, says "I had suffered from acute rheumatism for 7 years, when Mr. Cavanaugh of 52 Hanson St., Dorchester, told me of the Osmo-Chemic Physicians. He told me how they had cured Mr. Henry of 99 Elm Hill, and Thos. Malley, Va. 11 Scarso Ave., Dorchester, as well as hundreds he could name whose cases Henry was before being treated by the Osmo-Chemic Physicians, and that he was a straight across deal, now working every day. Acting upon this advice I was treated by the Osmo-Chemic Physicians and cured."

The toll of the conflagrations in the city since their beginning, in the Knowles building on Main street yesterday morning is now nineteen lives lost, nine buildings burned, twenty dwellings scorched and a loss slightly less than $1,000,000—smaller than had been estimated.

Taylor was ordered held for observation at Station 1 by Doctor Walter C. Haviland, following examination by State Officers McCarthy and Mafle. Taylor's stories of the fire which started in the Smith and spread to the Merrifield building were conflicting and the explanation of his actions were unsatisfactory to the officers.

The latest fire here broke out shortly before midnight in the store of Will A. Company, store Mutual building, No. 336 Main street, near the Knowles building. Three distinct blazes were discovered, two in the store and one in the basement. Fire Chief Avery remarked to a state officer during the search for evidence of incendiarism, "I guess they're here all right." Damage was estimated at about $200.

Earlier in the night four firemen were badly injured and a damage of $25,000 resulted from a two-alarm fire in the one-story brick foundry building of Richard D. Power at East Worcester street and Demarco terrace.

The firemen were directing a stream of water on the flames from the outside of the building when part of the wall came down. Lieutenant Frank Lambert of Ladder Company No. 2 and Hosemen John Mara, John Gonyea and Albert Waters of Engine Company No. 3 were in the path of the falling wall and rendered unconscious.

Lambert was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital. The others were sent to the City Hospital.

FIRE IN SOUTH END.

Before this fire broke out there was another on Prescott street in two sheds near the railroad tracks of the Boston & Maine in the North End, which caused a damage of $1,500. The sheds are used by George A. Harward for roofing supplies.

Both fires are being investigated by the State police.

Taylor, the detained night watchman, told the State officers that about the time the Knowles building fire started yesterday morning he saw a barrel on fire in the alley off North Foster street, against the wall in that part of the M. K. Smith building occupied by Henry Brannon & Son, cement manufacturers.

Taylor said the barrel evidently contained highly inflammable material for it was blazing high, and had already started a fire in the Brannon store. He claims to have sounded immediately an alarm from Box 32 at Exchange and Union streets. When the apparatus failed to respond he says he sent in another alarm. The fire department at that time was fully occupied with the burning Knowles and Sawyer buildings on Main street, three-quarters of a mile away.

The fire had then spread through the Smith building and into the Merrifield building, Taylor continued. He then said he telephoned fire headquarters, and nearly one hour after the fire started the apparatus arrived. Firemen discovered a blazing dress suit case in the building in the distance from where the fire was raging.

When the night watchman was questioned over again by the officers and newspapermen, the conflicting statements that led to the calling of Doctor Walter Haviland were brought out.

State police questioned Stanislaus Omilanowitz, watchman for Samuel Marcus, lessee of Knowles Building.

Marcus told the State police he recently had his insurance cut $26,000 to reduce expenses.

"It is my opinion that the fire in the Knowles building, which I recently leased, was set," said Marcus.

State Officer McCarthy investigated night Watchman Taylor's story of a blazing barrel against the Merrifield estate building and found that there was a barrel of oil belonging to the Gulf Refining Company which had been ordered returned and was left standing near the structure.

"My investigation of that barrel of oil claim convinces me that it had nothing to do with the Merrifield estate building fire," said McCarthy.

MAYOR'S STATEMENT.

Mayor Peter F. Sullivan issued the following statement:

"We are co-operating with the police in running down all those who would indicate that the fires were the work of pyromaniacs. Reports sent broadcast regarding the conflagration are in line with what usually happens when a blaze of any proportions gets under way. But when the smoke screen is lifted and an account of stock taken in the ashes found that things are not what they at first seem.

"Such is the case in the big scare that went out about Worcester being swept by flames. Everybody thought we were burned out. Such is not the case. Only seven buildings were destroyed. I told the business men to keep cool. I was asked to call out the military and put the city under martial law. This I refused.

"Governor Coolidge was nominated for the Vice-Presidency on the strength of a book of speeches he issued touching on the theory of 'law's faith in Massachusetts' a solid business and professional men who importuned me to put the city under martial law to have faith in the people of Worcester.'

"I'm glad they did. What is the result? Our city emerges from the smoke screen more resplendent than ever, thanks to the kindness of the fire departments of neighboring cities and towns.

"I want to thank Fire Commissioner John R. Murphy of Boston for sending Engine Company No. 26 to our city."

BUSINESS MEN CONFER.

A meeting of representative business men was held in the directors' room of the Worcester Chamber of Commerce to consider conditions arising from the fires.

The sentiments of the meeting were embodied in a resolution which was unanimously adopted as expressing the thought of the business men of Worcester.

The resolution follows:

"Resolved, That during the serious and devastating fires which have occurred today—the burning of the Knowles Building, the Sawyer Estate Buildings and the Merrifield Building, with attendant severe losses to the owners and tenants of those buildings—the heroic and effective work of the men of the Worcester Fire Department, under the direction of Chief Edward N. Avery, is worthy of most notable commendation and unlimited praise, and such public recognition should be and hereby is given by the business interests of the city by the publication of this resolution and by a vote of thanks to these loyal citizens and members of the fire department in all branches of the service. Sincere thanks is also tendered to the fire departments of surrounding towns and cities for their assistance in this time of need.

"Be it further resolved, That this recognition also be given to the efficient service of the members of the Worcester police department under the direction of Chief George H. Bell in their effective efforts in maintaining order and affording protection to the citizens of Worcester.

"Be it further resolved, That our earnest appreciation is extended to the Salvation Army, Red Cross, school children, merchants and others, who worked for the comfort of the firemen and policemen during the long hours they were on duty.

"Resolved, That in the opinion of these men assembled, the feeling of unrest caused by these fires should not create undue fear in the minds of the people; that they are largely the result of normal Winter conditions, and that the exercising of proper care of buildings and heating plants will prevent further repetition of such events as have just taken place."

At the close of the meeting business men in the centre of the city started a voluntary fund to divide between the relief associations of the firemen and policemen in appreciation of their work during the fire. These contributions were announced: Telegram Newspaper Company, $100; C. T. Sherer Company, $100; John C. McInnes Company, $100; Denholm & McKay Company, $100; Hazard, Sumner & Putnam Company, $100; Kinnicutt, Woodward Trust, $100.

Individuals and firms desirous of contributing to this voluntary fund are asked to send their checks to the Worcester Chamber of Commerce. Checks should be made payable to John E. Waite, treasurer.

These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."—Advertisement.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY IN "HARD TIMES"

A secret of that "INDEFINABLE SOMETHING" that enables one man to push ahead and win while twenty others may fail.

WHICH MAN IN THE PICTURE BELOW IS YOU?

A man may be a great success in "good times" when the going is easy, but a COMPLETE FAILURE IN "HARD TIMES"—the man worth while is the man who can face the great depression of "hard times" WITH A SMILE and still win.

The constant worry, anxiety, stress and nervous strain that a man is under in "hard times" often saps his vitality, WEAKENS HIS BRAIN AND "WILL POWER" and takes the life and driving force out of his blood, without his fully realizing what has happened to him—he knows SOMETHING IS WRONG, that he is not GETTING AHEAD as he should, but he doesn't know why. IF YOUR BANK BALANCE IS NOT UP TO THE MARK; if things are not coming your way; look into your physical condition.

YOUR BRAIN CANNOT WORK RIGHT—think the thoughts that bring SUCCESS—when YOU LACK BODILY AND MENTAL VIGOR—a great business man has said that genius is nothing but a capacity for hard work—a wizard is generally a man who thinks longer and harder than the other fellow — that "indefinable something" that wins is often nothing more than an "IRON WILL" supported by IRON BLOOD.

IRON IS THE MASTER PRINCIPLE OF THE BLOOD and blood is life. It is the iron in your blood that feeds the nerves, the brain. Without iron your brain gets no oxygen. Without oxygen and plenty of blood your brain becomes dull and heavy; YOUR INTELLECTUAL POWER YOU MAY MAKE BAD DECISIONS; DO FOOLISH THINGS; YOUR MEMORY OFTEN FAILS—no matter how smart you may be by nature, to your normal degree of brain power, conditions YOU ARE CERTAINLY NO MATCH for the STRONG, KEEN, CLEAR HEADED MAN with plenty of iron in his blood. Although you have been in the same fire arms or swords in a battle, the strong, vigorous fellow always has a decided advantage over a weak, tired-out opponent.

WITHOUT IRON YOUR BLOOD ALSO LOSES ITS POWER TO CHANGE FOOD INTO LIVING CELLS AND TISSUE and nothing you eat gives you the proper amount of good—you do not get the full strength out of it. In fact, sometimes the more you eat the more you have to eat.

A MAN WHEN HIS BLOOD LACKS IRON.

When you get up feeling tired in the morning, when you find yourself nervous, irritable and easily upset; when you can no longer do your day's work without losing all appetite at night; or have pains across the back and your face looks pale and drawn, do not wait until you go all to pieces and collapse in a state of nervous prostration, but drug your weakened condition you contract some serious disease. Take some good reliable tonic like NUXATED IRON at once to help enrich your blood and revitalize your weak, tired nerves. Organic Nuxated Iron often increases the bodily and mental vigor of weak, tired, nervous men and women in two weeks' time. It's like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, health and genius. You can even eat it if you wish. It will not blacken or injure the teeth as do the inorganic iron tonics. It is entirely different from ordinary metallic iron which people usually take, and which is made merely by the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron.

Beware of substitutes. Look for the word "NUXATED" on every package and the letters N.I. on every tablet. Your money will be refunded by manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. At all druggists.

NUXATED IRON ENRICHES THE BLOOD-GIVES YOU NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY

Dandruff Soon Ruins the Hair

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—Advertisement.

JONES CHARGES NEW PLOT ON U. S. SHIPPING

British Reaching Out to Grab American Freight by Centring it at New York

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Great Britain is not only using her own efforts to destroy the American merchant marine, but she is enlisting American interests in such a campaign, Senator Wesley L. Jones, Republican, of Washington, charged here today in an address before the National Merchant Marine League.

In the face of these charges Admiral W. S. Benson, chairman of the United States Shipping Board, announced the firm policy to proceed as 'charged by the law of the land to establish a permanent merchant marine."

"Mind you, gentlemen, the law says that with a permanent merchant marine under the American flag vessels shall be maintained between United States ports or possessions and other world or domestic ports," Admiral Benson declared.

The International Mercantile Marine Company, an American organization, owner of the American line of steamships, has entered into a twenty-year written agreement with the British admiralty to pursue "no policy injurious to the British shipping, British Marine or British trade," Senator Jones declared.

Under the terms of this agreement the Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain is to act as arbiter in any dispute between the American company and the British admiralty, the Senator said.

Jones charged that there was a plot to divert American freight to New York in the interest of British shipping.

The United States Chamber of Commerce and its magazine, The Nation's Business, the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, an unnamed agent of the United States Shipping Board, international bankers and the heads of great railroad and steamship lines are all being used by British interests to injure the American merchant marine, Senator Jones declared.

Bans Silk Shirts at Sing Sing

New York, Jan. 20.—Dress reform has hit Sing Sing.

For some time Begu Brummele of the prison have been wearing only the trousers section of the prescribed uniform. Otherwise they dolled up in stiff collars, gaudy silk shirts and fancy cravats.

It was hard to reconcile the make-up of such aristocrats as William Lutsgarten, Joseph Cohen and Dr. Julius Hammer with the conventional Sing Sing garments of proletarians like O. K. Bill Meyers and Marcus Bassett.

Warden Dawes yesterday issued a style book. Homespun gray is to be popular hereafter, and only one style of garment is offered. The new styles are designed to do away with class distinction in the prison. Also they will make it more difficult for convicts to escape.

Hypnotized Lobster Is Puzzle to Scientists

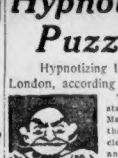
Hypnotizing lobsters is the very latest. It's being done in London, according to the London Daily Mail.



That staid sheet states that F. Martin Duncan of the Zoological Society can do it, and has demonstrated the fact.

His subject is described as a "wild, uneducated female lobster," chosen at random from a fishmonger's. This was to avoid suspicion of collusion between the subject and the hypnotist.

BUCKS LIKE MUSTANG.

She "bucked" like a mustang, so so runs the Daily Mail article, and when first turned loose on a table showed all the indignation and hostile intent of a normal, healthy lady lobster taken out of her proper environment.

Then the hypnotizing began. It consisted of what is sometimes vulgarly called "scratching the back."

Mr. Duncan passed his hand soothingly over the polished back. Under this gentle massaging the lobster permitted her tail to be unfolded. She lost her expression of distrust and suspicion, according to the truthful correspondent of the Mail and betrayed a touching confidence in her jailers.

But more was to come. Mr. Duncan lifted the hypnotized shellfish and stood her on her head. Her nose and else

We claws were her only support in her equilibristic act.

"For five minutes she stood there," runs on the solemn scientist of the Daily Mail.

SLEEP WEARS OFF.

"She did not waver. But finally the hypnotic sleep began to wear off. A few minutes later it had entirely passed away, leaving only a pronounced belligerent lobster, of the feminine gender."

Dr. Chalmers Mitchell, F. R. S., secretary of the Zoological Society, and one of the "dons" among the scientists, watched the experiment. He could not explain it.

Some time ago it will be remembered, writers deluged the Boston Herald with tales of lobsters, American describing lobsters and all kinds of outlandish shellfish.

At that time we ventured to predict that the worst was yet to come—that before the full truth was known about the lobster its wiser and not so wise brethren would be shocked and saddened.

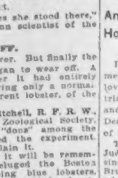
And here it is



The lobster, that used to be considered the steadiest of creatures, is actually the "tribby" of the deep, lending herself readily to hypnotism and who knows what else.

DESTETO SLAIN PLAYING GUITAR, GIRL TESTIFIES

Anna Philomena Tells Jury How He Died Courting Her and of Accused Rival's Threat

Pittsfield, Jan. 20.—Anna Philomena, the pretty little Italian girl loved by both Bruno Manzatto, on trial here for first degree murder, and his alleged victim, "Jimmy" Desteto, told a jury here her story of the shooting on August 13, 1918.

The case has been on trial before Judge Callahan in Superior Court since Monday. She had spurned Bruno and had accepted "Jimmy," who had recently returned from war service. She testified in part as follows:

"I was crocheting that night 'Jimmie' came to the house. He was playing the guitar near the window and singing to me. Around 9:45 o'clock there were three shots fired and fell down dead.

"I knew Bruno by sight. He told me a good many times he liked me and wanted to marry me. I would meet him coming from work.

"Bruno had a revolver and showed it to everybody. I saw it on him a month or two before the shooting. The night 'Jimmy' was killed I ran and told the police.

"Bruno had told me that if I did not keep away from 'Jimmy' he would kill him."

SOUTH BREEZES DRIVE COLD AWAY

Tomorrow to Be Even Warmer With Perhaps a Rainstorm; No Snow in Sight

The back of the cold wave was broken during the night most effectively and as a result the local forecaster predicts New England, and more particularly Boston, will swelter along under a temperature ranging from 35 to 40 degrees above zero during the day. By tomorrow it will have passed the latter mark in its onward movement.

A wind today from the South brought with it a return to the conditions which prevailed last week. In some parts of New England there are light local snows, but no heavy storms are expected.

On the contrary it would not be surprising if there are rains, which now predominate in the Ohio Valley west of New York.

A disturbance which seems central in Ontario has caused snows in that section, but it is believed to be too far away from Boston and New England to reach here. The unofficial predictions are that it will be warmer and cloudy tonight and tomorrow.

The low mark today was 18 above at 1 o'clock, while at 9 the mercury had risen 10 degrees to 28 above. A year ago 27 was high and 6 was low. Greenville, Me., at 2 below, was New England's coldest place.

"MAM'ZELLE TAPS" TO BE PRESENTED TONIGHT

Wounded soldiers, ex-service men and girls of the Service Star Legion are working hard to make "Mam'selle Taps," the operetta to be given by Dedham Post, American Legion, tonight and tomorrow at Memorial Hall, Dedham, a success. The proceeds will be used to fit up the new club house given by Mrs. Henry F. Endicott. Miss Eileen V. Driscoll, who will sing the part of 'Marie,' the heroine, Daniel H. Beckford, Jr., and Martin Albrecht are professional singers who have tendered their services to aid the affair. There is a chorus of more than twenty-five

DON'T SQUEEZE BLACKHEADS—DISSOLVE THEM

Squeezing and pinching out blackheads make the pores large and causes irritation—more than, too, after they have become hard you cannot get all of them out. Blackheads are caused by accumulations of dust and dirt and secretions from the skin and there is only one safe and sure way and one that never fails to get rid of them—in a simple way, too—that is to dissolve them. Just get from any drug store about two ounces of ordinary powdered arvon—sprinkle a little on a wet, wet sponge and rub the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—wash off and you'll be surprised to see that every blackhead has disappeared, and the skin will be left soft and the pores in their natural condition. Anyone troubled with these unsightly blemishes should try this simple method.—Advertisement.

Scenes Showing the Path of Ruin and Wreckage Cut by Fire at Worcester

The faithful Salvation Army man played an important role in the fire at Worcester. Here one of them is seen giving hot coffee to firemen wearied from several hours' continuous battle with the flames. Paper was used to insulate the coffee cans from the biting cold.

The woodworking shop and factories of the Merrifield Estate at Nos. 33-37 North Foster street after the fire had spent itself. The street facing the buildings was a network of fire hose during the height of the blaze. As fast as the water was played on the structures it froze and endangered the lives of firemen working on ladders.

The front of the Knowles building, No. 516 Main street, where the fire started. Within a few minutes after the blaze was discovered the entire building was a mass of flames. The fire spread so rapidly many persons were trapped in the elevators and a number erving hot coffee and doughnuts to firemen after the fire had been placed under control. Citizens volunteered their services to bring such comfort as possible under the circumstances. Restaurants and food shops contributed the coffee, doughnuts and mugs. The firemen, after a seemingly endless stretch at fighting the flames, came in relays to the various stations for refreshing food and coffee.

A scene on Chatham street looking down into the heart of the fire as it spread away from the point where it started. At the left is the Knowles building, on the upper floors of which the first fire was discovered. In the centre of the photograph firemen can be seen battling in front of a thick curtain of smoke.

A rear view of the woodworking shops and factory of the Merrifield Estate showing the sweeping spread of the flames. The fire burned out the interior of the first two buildings at the left and was rapidly consuming the smaller structure when this photograph was taken. Although many lines of hose were frozen every available stream of water was played into flaming buildings and the fire was brought under control after six hours' continuous fighting. Many of the firemen were injured and cut while working in the thick smoke.

Ruins of the William H. Sawyer Building at Main and Federal streets where a fire was discovered simultaneously with that in the Knowles Building. One corner of the structure was practically levelled. The falling spray from the streams of water fell in the street and covered it with a coating several inches thick in many places, lending the appearance of a recent snowfall. It was so cold that ice formed on the walls of blazing buildings.

SMOKE-STACK "H" PROPOSED FOR HARVARD

Graduates Suggest Using Elevated's Twin Chimneys as Symbol of University

Fancy a crimson letter "H" 223 feet high and 120 feet wide, the most gigantic symbol of Harvard University in the world!

Placing a horizontal midway between the towering twin chimneys of the Elevated power house standing on Charles River Parkway in Cambridge, close to the Lars Anderson bridge on Boylston street, the thoroughfare that leads to the Stadium, would do the trick.

Harvard "grads" have suggested it. The plan appears popular with the younger students, but official Harvard frowns on it. The Crimson, which has published letters of graduate indorsers, has administered an editorial wallop. The idea seems popular with the citizens at large.

Said the Crimson, in part: "The proposition smacks too much of small-town Chamber of Commerce advertising to make it even conceivable as a method of creating harmony from the discord caused by the present stacks. The ingenious scheme does not even merit serious consideration."

The first suggestion came from Van Ness H. Bates, '19, whose letter, published in the Crimson, reads in part:

"While driving by those stately stacks an idea came to me which, upon expression to the other members of the party and to several other friends since, met with such instant indorsement that I was urged to submit it for consideration. Practical or not, it is at least interesting. The plan is to erect a cross member at a suitable height between the stacks, consisting of substantial framework so covered that it would appear to the eye as of the same solidity as the chimneys themselves. The result would be a gigantic H, which would be seen from nearly every point of the compass.

"The sentimental value of such a huge letter is easy to contemplate. It would stand at the entrance to the Freshman halls a constant reminder to the entering classes of the greatness of the University.

"It would face the athletic fields and river where Harvard teams and crews would see it daily as the heroic image of the emblem they strive to win. And it would look across the intervening buildings to the square, the yard, and the memorial hall, and all the spots of Harvard tradition and proclaim to all who behold it the presence of Harvard.

"Whether or not this scheme is as practical as it is appealing to the imagination is of course uncertain. The cost of the work, the smoke from the chimneys, the strength of the stacks, the engineering problems, the sanction of the Elevated, etc., are all factors any one of which might make the undertaking impossible. However, we never know what is thought is worth until it is criticised. So here is this one—do with it as you will. Yours for the big H.

"VAN NESS H. BATES, '19."

CARTOON FIGHT MAY SUSPEND SCHOOL PAPER

Official of The Alpha, New Bedford High Organ, Charges Interference

New Bedford, Jan. 20.—J. Henry Quinn, business manager of The Alpha, for nearly thirty years the publication of the student body of the New Bedford High School, says the impending issue of the monthly magazine will be the last unless the faculty ceases its interference with the actions and policies of the editorial staff.

The trouble lies, Quinn says, with the inability of the Alpha board to agree with the faculty members regarding the difference between "pep" and indecency.

Edward H. Perry, Jr., the editor-in-chief, was dismissed from his classes almost on the eve of his graduation when it became known to the school authorities that he had disregarded Miss Fay Newland's "advice" to eliminate from the impending issue a drawing which she held to be highly improper. Miss Newland was faculty adviser of the editorial staff.

DRAWN FROM MODELS.

The other members of the staff, however, by way of expressing confidence in Perry and his administration, refused to elect his successor, and by the same token gave Miss Newland to understand that her resignation would be quite in order. She resigned and the board at once proceeded to elect Miss Mary Livingston in her stead.

That the trouble may be a great deal farther reaching in its effect than the faculty members at first imagined was indicated by the staff, when the associate editors said the student members of the board were preparing to issue the paper under another name and to refuse the teachers the privilege of having anything to say about the publication.

Milton S. Handford, who drew the cartoon which offended Miss Newland's sense of propriety got his idea in the Yale Record. He says he faithfully copied the drawing from three of the gowns worn at the recent ball of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps at the high school.

CANNOT SEE OBJECTION.

Both Perry, the editor-in-chief, and Handford, the staff cartoonist, are members of socially prominent families. Perry is the son of an attorney and Handford the son of Joseph H. Handford, the city assessor.

"I went to the ball," the elder Mr. Handford said today, "and stood beside my son while he roughly sketched the gowns, and I can testify that the drawing was accurate to the minutest detail. If women wearing such gowns—and I thought them innocent enough—were permitted at the ball, I can't see that there could there can possibly be to reproducing them in a drawing."

"Honor Lunch" Man Retires Wealthy

Washington, Jan. 20.—As a result of his faith in his fellowman, James M. Ford, proprietor of the first lunch room where the "honor system" prevailed, has been able to retire with a fortune after doing business for forty years.

By his "honor system" thousands of people, ranging from high government officials to ragged newsboys, were allowed to eat their fill and then walk up to the cashier and pay for their food. Their word was never questioned.

Probably no lunch room in the United States had a more democratic list of patrons. During the war it was a daily occurrence to see the then Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo or some millionaire banker or broker sitting beside a newsboy discussing events of the day while eating lunch. The lunch room was opposite the Treasury Department.

Was Labor Becoming "Too High Toned"?

What is the significance of the so-called "open shop" drive, which isn't "open shop" at all, but anti-union?

The Editor of the Boston Sunday Advertiser addressed this question to

William Allen White

Author of "A Certain Rich Man," "The Old Order Changeth," "Martial Adventures of Henry and Me," etc. etc.

Originator of "What's the Matter With Kansas?"

Editor, Emporia (Kan.) Gazette.

"It is my firm belief," said Mr. White, "that a concerted action on the part of Associated Industries and Chambers of Commerce is being made not so much for financial reasons as for social ones!"

Why does White say this?

What grounds has he for such an assertion?

QUESTIONS THEY ASK ABOUT $5,000 MOVIE TEST

Before attempting to reply to several inquiries from participants in the $5,000 Movie Player Identification Test, the Movie Editor desires today to reprint a paragraph or two from the announcement which accompanied the printing of Test Pictures Nos. 1 and 2 in the Boston Sunday Advertiser of December 19:

You will observe that in these pictures a part of the photograph has been cut away. The purpose is to make it a matter of close study to identify the Test pictures. It may look easy, but it will require application and it will call upon your memory and your power of observation.

In each case the change in the photograph will be comparatively slight. Sometimes only a part of the top of the picture will be cut away. In succeeding photographs it may be the chins that are cut off. Occasionally, both top and bottom will be missing.

ANOTHER WARNING.

And then, on Monday, December 20, printing Pictures Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4 in the Boston American, we said, under the anxious head, "Not an Easy Task":

Now it is not going to be SO easy to carry off one of these awards as our friends may suppose. Of course you knew yesterday's pictures. Perhaps you recognize today's. But how about tomorrow's, and the next day's, and the day after that?

Are you SURE of your identification of the first four pictures? Wait! One of these days we shall begin to trim the pictures a little. Maybe we shall cut off above the eyes or below the lips. They will be recognizable—you may be sure of that—but it will take a little study. It will not be so easy—there—to say, "Oh, I know her; that is Elsie Ferguson!"

"Yes," you say, "we recall that, perfectly. What of it? Why the Ancient History?"

ANONYMOUS COMPLAINTS.

Because of three anonymous complaints!

1.—"At the beginning of the Test you said the pictures would be those of players well-known to the public. You have printed the pictures of many persons whom I believe are those who have never been on the screen." (This from Fall River.)

2.—"Do you publish two pictures of the same person? How about Clara Kimball Young twice? Why do you cover up part of the face and make it impossible to guess? Why do you contract some faces and expand others?" (This from Constant Reader, Clinton.)

3.—"In regard to the Movie Player Test, you say that it will be no easy thing after today. I object to your putting on masks because the Test is terrible hard now. I attend the moving pictures at least twice a week, and I have failed to identify nine pictures. Where are you getting half of these players? I never heard tell of half the ones you have put in lately." (This "kick" is not only unsigned but undated and, with the envelope missing, the Movie Editor is unable even to "place" it.)

NOW FOR ANSWERS.

Ordinarily, newspapers pay no attention to anonymous letters, but the Movie Editor feels that he ought to dispose of these, and he will try to do so good-naturedly.

"Fall River" says we have printed the pictures of many persons no one has ever seen upon the screen.

Of course this is untrue, as will appear when the list of names is published at the completion of the Test. If it WERE true, however, "Fall River's" opportunity still would be as good as anybody's!

Clinton Constant Reader asks why we cover up part of the face.

We did not know that this had been done. We admonished everybody that it would be done, but have postponed doing it. We still mean to do it. If anybody finds the Test impossible thus early he would do well to let it slide. Those who mean business will attack, for whether the record achievement is 60, 90 or 120 correct identifications, the full amount of $5,000—more if there are ties—will be publicly distributed to 219 of you at the end of the Test.

The thing to do, brothers and sisters, IF you know the people of the motion pictures, is S-T-I-C-K. If an occasional picture baffles YOU, it may be baffling everybody else. The 219 cash awards go to those who send in the largest PERCENTAGES of correct identifications.

Hereafter we shall pay NO attention to anonymous correspondents. If you write, please sign your name! Now for the "regular" letters:

ANSWERS TO THE CURIOUS.

Tremont Street, Lawrence: "If not against the rules, will you kindly tell me whether or not you will print more than one picture of the same player and whether or not you will print pictures of deceased players?"

A.—Each of the players pictured will be to the best of our knowledge living at the time the picture is published.

Notwithstanding a generous use of capital letters in the frequent admonition to SEND IN NOTHING UNTIL THE END OF THE TEST, Hosmon Street, Lynn, wants to know: "If it is necessary to send in my name before I send in the identified pictures?

A.—No enrollment is necessary. Send in nothing until the end of the Test.

Windsor Street, Springfield, is another who wants to know: "If each and every picture printed is to be that of a different player?"

A.—My dear, that is a TEST!

WAIT UNTIL THE END.

"I should like to know," says Bailey Street, Lawrence, "when to send in my name. The reason for asking is that I overheard some one saying that all those who did not send their names in by Tuesday were out of the Test. Another question is: Would it be all right to paste a piece of paper under the picture and then write your name, address, theatre, etc? The paper shuts when you write in ink."

A.—Regardless of what gossips may say, you are to SEND IN NOTHING UNTIL THE END OF THE TEST. The use of a white paper background in the manner suggested is O. K.

From Wellesley: "Would you please inform me whether moving picture operators and members of their families are barred from the Movie Player Identification Test?"

A.—They are, just as employes of the Boston American, the Boston Sunday Advertiser, associated publications and the members of THEIR families are barred. We regret that this must be so, but feel sure you will not question its fairness.

USE LARGE OR SMALL.

Main Street, Providence: "As I lost two days of the Boston American, I have used small pictures from the Sunday Advertiser. Will it be all right to put large and small together? Also, may one name her favorite theatre, even if it is not named among the co-operating houses?"

A.—Parcels may be made up of large or small pictures, either or both. What you have done is permissible. Name your "favorite" theatre.

Spring Street, Pawtucket: "I am writing to ask whether you will reprint the final sixty pictures in the last week of the Test?

A.—Due warning was given of our intention to PRINT NO MORE BACK PICTURES. Two a day from now on; never more than two. Sorry if this is not what you want, but other participants are on record in opposition to the re-prints we already have made. Your newsdealer will be pleased to take your order for the Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

CAN ENTER ANY TIME.

Back Bay wants to know: "If we are too late to enter this very interesting Test?"

A.—Anybody may enter the Test at any time who can get the Test Pictures. Your newsdealer is your only hope in that direction. He MAY be able to help you but we doubt it very much.

Friends in Chancery Court, Lynn: "May we use an entire sheet from the Sunday Advertiser, with the Test Pictures, or would you advise cutting the slips separately? There are seven theatres here; how shall we fill in the line? 'Theatre You Attend'?"

A.—You may use the entire sheet or cut it into individual strips, as suits your convenience. Name any theatre you like.

Howard street, Springfield, is another who is puzzled by the dotted line: Theatre You Attend. "I go to more than one," the lady writes.

A. — Name your regular or favorite motion picture theatre.

CANNOT TELL NAMES.

The problem of a friend in Calumet street, Roxbury is: "Would you kindly tell me the name of the old man in 'The Miracle Man'? There are a few more I should like to know if there is any way I can be helped out."

A.—Sorry, dear, but we are not permitted to tell names. YOU have to tell US the NAMES. That is where the Test comes in. Think a minute. If we told names, this enjoyable little enterprise might cost us $50,000,000. You can get a lot of help from publications and the members of THEIR families are barred. We regret that this must be so, but feel sure you will not question its fairness.

A young lady in Hanover street, Lebanon, N. H., asks us to: "Kindly send me full details of the Movie Player Test. I am much interested in movies."

A.—We can only say to this inquiry that it appears to be too late to start in the present Test. See answer (above) to "Back Bay."

This is the thirty-first day of this enjoyable Test. Pictures Nos. 61 and 62 will be found upon the Picture Page.

Bare Shelves Face Children in Boston's Libraries

Scene at the East Boston branch of the Boston Public Library, on Meridian street. The arrows point to the barren shelves. Children are seen patiently waiting for books to be returned in order that they may have something to read.

Several hundred children, pushing, crowding and begging for reading matter and only a few books on the library shelves.

That is a condition that may be seen almost any day at branches of the Boston Public Library in congested districts of the city.

A few of the children will have books to be returned, but they are quickly snatched up by other eager little readers.

Most of the youngsters, however, wait for several hours in the "book line" before their turn comes to receive one of precious volumes.

MANY FAIL TO GET BOOKS.

Many go home empty handed and downhearted after a long wait, and the library attendants are hard put to keep peace among the clamoring crowd left striving to avoid similar disappointment.

The attendants, eager to accommodate, work frantically to restore the books to circulation as they are brought back. But their efforts often avail little to stem the demand.

In more than one of the library branches it has been found necessary to adopt an arbitrary rule that no children be permitted to enter the library unless they possess cards for borrowing books or want to apply for a card.

10,000 USE BRANCH.

Ten thousand children in the North End consider the branch library on North Bennett street as a second home. This is the only place they can find the necessary seclusion to devote to the reading and studying assigned by their school teachers. Their homes are overcrowded and noisy.

Two public and three parochial school districts are dependent upon this branch for co-operation in educating their pupils.

"Books, books and more books, especially children's books, is the cry all over the city typically illustrated at this centre.

"Most of the youngsters, however wait for several hours in the "book line" before their turn comes to receive one of precious volumes.

SELDOM FIND BOOKS SOUGHT.

The children are seldom able to find the book they are after, and are fortunate to obtain a substitute. The average daily attendance at the North End branch exceeds 400, greatly overtaxing the existing accommodations.

Because of the crowds and the lack of attendants it is frequently necessary to close the registration department at 4 p. m., five hours before the library closes for the night.

The greatest demand at the North End is for books suitable for children between the ages of seven and twelve. This is the period when the habit of reading is acquired and tastes begin their development.

SHORT OF ITALIAN READING.

So great is the demand of children of these ages that they are compelled to wait from the closing of school until long after supper time to secure one of the highly-prized books.

The need is not confined to children's books in the North End. There is an overwhelming demand for books in Italian on a wide variety of subjects, but notwithstanding the fact that the North End is the "Little Italy" of Boston, there have been no additions to the collection of books in the Italian language since 1914.

These searchers after knowledge tell the library attendants: "We have read and re-read all your books in Italian and would like to have some new ones. Hundreds more of us would come here if we could get some new books."

Newspapers and magazines in the Italian language are read until they are virtually pulp. In spite of the fact that the North End has more Italians than any other section of the city, there is not a single copy of an Italian dictionary on the shelves of the North End branch.

The trustees of the Boston Public Library are aware of the urgent need of more books and have included in their budget for maintaining the library system this year an item of $100,000 to be used for the purchase of new books. This matter will soon come before Mayor Peters and the City Council for action.

LUDENDORFF DENIES RUSSIAN PLOT GUILT

Not Involved in Any Counter-Revolutionary Schemes, He Tells Correspondent.

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND.
Boston American Staff Correspondent.

Munich, Jan. 20.—"I want to be let alone in my retirement. I am not mixed up in any alleged counter revolutionary movement against Russia nor in any such rumored plans in Germany and I am heartily tired of having such rumors and reports hung onto me."

Thus indignantly exploded General Ludendorff when I called on him in a suburb of Munich. I went to his suburban place to ask him about the much rumored schemes in which Germany is expected to participate against the Soviets. I went to ask him if he is really behind the counter-revolutionary movement in South Germany and to learn just what are his plans if France should press the demand for the disarmament of the civic guards.

"I am quietly living here," declared General Ludendorff. "I am not meddling either in Bavarian or national politics. All I ask is to be left in peace instead of having to face these constant rumors and reports of my alleged activities.

"There are constantly being set afloat reports that I am going to upset something or somebody. If those rumor mongers would make their charges in such a way that I could get at them I would quickly proceed against them for slander.

"A thing may be perfect in theory but be wholly impossible of being carried out in practice, and any international intervention in Russia is one of those things.

Wants Harvard Chapel Open Entire Day

Donald V. Bennett of Columbus, Ohio, wants Appleton Chapel at Harvard open for the whole school day, instead of less than an hour, as is now the case. Bennett has written the Crimson as follows:

"With some men the worship of God is not a thing of the number of chapel services attended. Some withdraw to the stillness of the Chapel to work out their individual problems and to worship not by stereotyped forms but in their own hearts. Here the Chapel now loses its greatest chance for service.

"For fifteen years, at least, and I know not how much longer, the Chapel doors have been open only during the hours of service or when someone is using the organ. Thus, our chapel is idle in so far as its prime object is concerned, twenty-three hours or more out of each twenty-four. Let us enable the Chapel to render the maximum service. Open it during the entire school day."

MILLIONS OWING TO SHIPPING BOARD

Colonel Abadie Says Chief Cause of Muddle Is Failure to Send Bills

New York, Jan. 20.—The hopeless muddle in the accounts of the Emergency Fleet Corporation and the U. S. Shipping Board, showing careless handling of millions of dollars of government money, was testified to before the Walsh congressional committee by Colonel Eugene H. Abadie, former general comptroller of the two bodies. He brought along a trunkful of records to back up what he said.

Colonel Abadie said the chief reason why the Shipping Board was in financial difficulties was because its accounting department failed to send bills to those who owed the board money—amounting into the millions—for operation of Shipping Board vessels.

He pointed out that the accounts receivable June 30, 1919, amounted to $215,796,276, and of this amount no bills had been sent to shipping firms and other debtors for sums totaling $151,798,987.

STILL SEIZED IN RAID AT CHELSEA; TWO HELD

Officers Elmore and Keating of the Chelsea police and federal prohibition agents raided the basement of the building at No. 104 Shurtleff street, Chelsea, and arrested Joseph Sidman and David Shapiro of the same address, charged with operating an illicit still. Filene's—to larger women!

WE WANT YOU TO KNOW that you have not been neglected in Filene values for January. Note the dress sketched, at $39.50, copied from one well over $100. Indian Head house dresses in larger sizes have just touched a new low price of $5.25; there are plenty of larger women's flesh color sateen bloomers, $1.50; also plenty of larger women's jewel-color taffeta petticoats, $5. Come in and find Filene Values for larger women equal to these all through the store!

Embroidered tricotine panel dresses, $39.50

THE original shipment were made to sell well over the hundred dollar mark; but it is such an ideal dress that we wanted many more women to have them, so had it copied, to sell at $39.50.

YOU can see by the sketch that the lines are carefully thought out,—low-placed waistline, long vest, turn-back revers, and long slashed panels. What you cannot see is the heavy black satin making the vest and lining the panels, the heavily-woven tricotine, and the graceful design made by the soutache embroidery. Sizes 44 to 48 on hand; sizes 48 to 52 (inclusive) can be ordered without extra charge.

NOTE: Should your measurements be unusual, so that you cannot wear "stock" sizes, the Larger Woman's Dress Shop will copy any dress in the Shop to your measurements for $10 extra.

"Roomy Top" shoes, $14.50

Made of soft kid on stylish lasts with extra large uppers for big ankles. High laced style. With good-looking low heel. In black only. Sizes 2-8, all widths.

A separate section of the blouse shop for larger women

ABOUT one-tenth of our blouse business is done on larger women's blouses. And the woman who buys these blouses knows stout women's needs. She knows that larger women want flat collars, extra large armholes, extra wide sleeves, and extra length from neck to waist. Dainty georgette waists t.....ed with so tache braid have long collars that extend to the waist line, $16.50. Suit satin waists with flat square collars, very good for school teachers or business women, $8.75.

Filene's—mail orders filled—fifth floor

Larger women should give corsets first attention

BECAUSE corsets are the foundation of a good figure. No matter how good the lines of dress or suit, if the lines underneath are not good they go for naught.

FILENE corset fitters are scientifically trained in their work. They have been taught the way to give larger women gracefulness through long, straight lines,—and there is no charge for this expert service.

New "Nemo" corsets for larger women:

Nemo "Wonderlift" (with abdominal support), $7.25.
Low-topped "Nemo" corsets, with elastic inserts, $5 and $7.

LOCAL MARKET HAS A MIXED MOVEMENT

Boston List Irregular at the Opening and Throughout Forenoon; Curb Active

Irregularity described the price movement on the Boston exchange when trading began today and the market did not develop any definite tendency during the morning. It was about as active as before this week and the range was narrow on the average. There was no great response to trading and it was devoid of any unusual feature. United Fruit was off more than a point at the opening and other weak issues were Maine Central and Edison. Each was a point. Boston Elevated, Swift International and United Drug common were the only stocks, except Calumet & Hecla, to advance a point or more during the first hour. The mining issues were with a five-point exception.

Fractionally higher stocks included American Telephone, Copper Range, North Butte, Highearl, Carson Hill and Massachusetts Gas. Among those to small losses in Calumet & Arizona, New Haven, Osceola, Boston & Maine A. Wickwire, Swift & Co., and International Paper.

Conners were quiet and the majority sold unchanged early in the session. Gains and losses were about balanced in the second hour.

CURB ISSUES UP.

The Curb market was strong at the start and also quite active. Early leaders were Boston & Montana and Eureka. They had the largest turnover at the previous session. Boston & Montana has been traded in on a large scale this week. Some favorable reports have come from the property. Issues to advance at the beginning were Arizona Tip Top, Gulfport, Recla Divide, Imperial, Handdoliver Reef, Texana, United Verde Extension and Verde Mines. Among weak ones were Allied Oil, Eureka, First National, Mutual and Ranier.

At the end of an hour Eureka had rallied and was up 2 cents at 72 cents. Arizona Silver was up 2 cents at 18 cents. Tip Top was up 2 cents. Merrimac Development half a cent at 4½ cents and United Verde Extension ¾ at 27⅝. Boston & Montana was off 2 cents at 57 cents. Ranier had recovered all its loss.

GEN. ASPHALT ADVANCES 5 POINTS

Specialties a Feature During the Morning; Steels and Oils Make Gains

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, the forward movement continuing during the second hour. Specialties featured the list during the morning and General Asphalt was a leader. It was up more than five points at its highest and maintained for gains by Houston Oil only. But the latter issue was not active. Tye opening call rate was 6 per cent. Sterling exchange rates were up at the beginning, declared sterling advancing more than two cents to 3.77¾.

The stock market was active, first hour transactions totalling about 250,000 shares. Among strongest issues were American Linseed, Gulf States Steel, National Enameling, International Paper, Texas Coal and Oil, Sears Roebuck, Pittsburgh Coal, Punta Alegre, Cuban American, Cuba-tan Stores, Atlantic Gulf and Mexican Petroleum. They advanced from two to about four points. Goodrich was down more than a point.

OPENED UP AND REACTED.

Stocks were up at the opening, but quickly reacted and the market became irregular within a few minutes and stayed so during the most of the first hour. The Pool operations made a number of specialties prominent. Steels were strong in exchange, but most oils showed early gains. The few sugars which came out sold higher. Tires advanced at the start, but weakened a little. Motors and equipments rallied finally. Rails were active coppers showed gains. Rails were mixed in movement. Leathers were a steady group, showing small gains. Tobaccos were firm on the whole. Usual leaders were in less demand at the outset than usual and General Asphalt was one of the most active issues and sold at a new high since listed on this exchange. It was found that offerings were also scarce without difficulty and when the morning was half over the trend was again upward.

TRADERS WERE CAUTIOUS.

The advance of the money rate to 7 per cent. just before the close yesterday made the bulls cautious. The recent decline of the rate is said to have caused the withdrawal of a number of funds from this market. But the government withdrawals from banks in the New York district this week was the main reason no doubt for the temporary advance of the rate. It was down again this morning. Brokerage houses are well supplied with money, according to common impression. It was said at the end of last week that $25,000,000 was available for market loans. It is reported that about $3,000,000 was loaned at 7 per cent. yesterday. The borrowing demand today was only moderate. Among traders sentiment seemed to be more bearish than the force of security prices would indicate.

Treasury under its provisions has not yet total 40,000,000 ounces. It is stated that under the act the Treasury will continue to buy for about three and a half years longer. The price of silver is well up in a range within two or three years. It reached the record high of $1.37½ per ounce in New York in September, 1919, and yesterday was quoted at 71⅞ cents. In London its record high was 89½d, and its recent low 38¼d.

CARPENTER ACCUSES DEMPSEY OF QUITTING IN THE BIG BOUT

CHAMPION IN FEAR OF LICKING

French Ring Star Hints at Plot to Rob Him of Title

Paris, Jan. 20.—According to a message received here from Georges Carpentier last evening to a close personal friend, the French fighter declares that if the fight between himself and Dempsey is called off it is because "Dempsey knows he is licked."

Following a cabled announcement that the fight was "off" because the forfeits were not posted, Carpentier wires:

"I know nothing about it except the newspaper reports. If the fight is called off it is because Dempsey knows he is licked.

"I paid the full amount of the forfeit to National Defence Bonds at the Morgan Harjes Bank in Paris last November."

Cochran Ready to Stage Title Battle

London, Jan. [illegible] from France and Italy [illegible] being cleared off, the [illegible] will receive the attention [illegible] London [illegible] the [illegible] ...

I am willing to [illegible] a purse of 10[illegible] pounds for [illegible] held [illegible] U. S. [illegible] seating, etc., [illegible] ... [illegible] ... [illegible] ... I heard [illegible] ... [illegible] ... government [illegible] ... [illegible] ... $50,000 to leave France.

Promoters' Forfeits Now Posted

"My share of the promoters' forfeit, $12,000, is in the hands of [illegible] posted [illegible] ... so are the shares of Hood and Brady. I was told that Delaney's [illegible] posted."

Cochran declared that the fight would [illegible] on to [illegible] that he has an option on a stadium in the heart of London.

Another statement that the fight has been called off [illegible] ... here the papers [illegible] ... all day. The papers claim that the New York Boxing Commission and Governor Miller have [illegible] ... the fight [illegible] ... Reed to make [illegible] ... Jimmy Johnson for a New York [illegible] at $16.

Rickard Left Alone With Big Bout on Hand

New York, Jan. 20.—Tex Rickard is heading a race with [illegible] ... white elephant in it [illegible].

The king bee of the promoters has apparently been left alone with the Dempsey-Carpentier fight on his hands by the [illegible] ... making of the match.

Wesham A. Brady was the first to withdraw. He has [illegible] ... responsible for the report that the fight had been called off.

Brady, who is the American representative of Charles B. Cochran of London, says he is [illegible] ... that Cochran is also on the outside looking in.

Meanwhile Tex Rickard maintains that as far as he is concerned the big battle is not off and that he will stage it, with [illegible] ... Montreal July 2.

"If Brady and Cochran want to withdraw, let them do so," said Rickard today. "I am going right on with the match. If necessary I will find new capital to go into the promotion of the bout with me."

Rickard still has the upper hand for, as he is a party to the contract binding the boxers, he has the edge on Brady and Cochran, who have stepped out, and will undoubtedly be given greater consideration by the boxers themselves should a new agreement be necessary.

Cut in Ring Prices Kills Off Show Here

The recent agreement of the newly formed National Boxing Association to limit ring fees for championship contests, following the ruling of the New York Boxing Commission to the same effect, had no bearing on Mike Gibbons-Jack Brady bout, it was withdrawal.

Much doubt regarding whether or not Rickard will put it possible to go through with the bout is now existent in the boxing world. Many clubs [illegible] ... famous promoter [illegible] ...

It is certain that with $15 as the top price in every State where the contest would be [illegible] ... dented "gate," Rickard would be foolhardy to go ahead with his plans.

As for Canada, there is just an outside possibility—a very faint one, at that—that the big fight could be made to pay.

Havana would scarcely be able to support the big fight with a purse of $40,000 and July weather in the city [illegible] ... Mosquitoes [illegible] ...

The [illegible] ... way were making small wagers today that the fight will not be staged in the United States [illegible] ... Jack Dempsey [illegible] ... it will go to London or Paris.

LEWIS SIGNS UP AND BARS HIS PET HOLD

Strangler Will Not Use Headlock in Bout With Gardini January 31

Strangler Lewis, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, has been matched to meet Ernie Gardini of Italy in a finish contest at Mechanics Building on the evening of January 31 under the direction of Joe Turin. Lewis and against the wishes of his manager, Billy Sandow, of the latter's part, has consented to the match. The condition for Lewis not using his favorite hold, the headlock, is a part of the contract signed by Lewis and Turin, as is also a guarantee of $8,000. This is the largest amount ever guaranteed a wrestler for a contest in this city.

When Lewis wrestled Gardini here recently, he received $6,000 for his end of the purse. The titleholder asked for $10,000 as his end for his contest to grapple without using his favorite hold. Promoter Jack Rickard [illegible] ... [illegible] ... parts here with. I make it impossible for [illegible] ... [illegible] ... ## Stories of Famous Fights

—McCarty Wins "White Title"

This is the fourteenth of a series of "Finishes of Old Time Fights," written by authorities on pugilism who were famous in their day. Others will follow. The story following is of the Luther McCarty-Al Palzer fight, also [illegible] at Fresno, just outside of Los Angeles, on January 1, 1913. That is, it was for the "white heavyweight championship." Jack Johnson was the world's title holder at the time.

By Charles E. Van Loan

Biff! Splash! Biff! Splash!

This, gentlemen, is the story of yesterday's innocent little diversion in words of one syllable.

A voice, clean how named McCarty did all the biffing and a large, open faced blonde named Palzer did all the splashing. As a division of labor nothing could have been fairer.

In the biffing line Mr. McCarty proved himself superior to Mr. Palzer but when it came to bleeding, Mr. Palzer won everything in sight. He without [illegible] ... the most prolific and [illegible] ... that has been seen in these parts for many a year. When it comes to quick [illegible] ... we rise to nominate Mr. Al Palzer for the heavyweight championship of the world and will freely back him to win over all comers by at least two quarts.

Referee Finally Stops Slaughter

He is either a very game man or he is troubled with a pair of foolish feet. They kept carrying him head on into trouble for eighteen rounds. It was during this period that Referee Eyton, who had left his gumshoes at home and was weary of wading in the Palzer product, ended the exhibition. Doctors used to believe that bleeding a patient with a knife [illegible] was beneficial.

If the ancient theory is a correct one, Mr. Palzer should remain healthy for the rest of his life. In passing, we desire to say for him that there is no yellow in his composition. He seems to be red all the way through.

McCarty Rips in Wicked Blows

* * * McCarty met Palzer's rush with a straight left to the [illegible] ... starting the eighteenth and final round. McCarty beat down [illegible] ... a heart punch. McCarty stood close and smashed with both hands [illegible] ... chin. Palzer's head jerked from side to side. Palzer [illegible] ... left and McCarty beat him to it. McCarty was a [illegible] ... Palzer's body sagged as it reached him. McCarty sent an [illegible] ... right and Palzer reeled toward the ropes with his guard lowered. The [illegible] ... Referee Eyton stepped between the man to save [illegible] ... further punishment and decided the contest in favor of McCarty.

An Appeal for the Kiddies

Sporting Editor Boston American: Dorchester, Dear Sir:

Will you help me out with one of your sporting notices? At Xmas Old Santa left me the nicest pair of shoe skates and I have been out every chance I could. Now it is all over. I like them fine. Friends came to call down the hills have been changing slows to McLaughlin's and other streets nearby. That is all over now. My mother saw me walking across the street to the ice yesterday just as an electric car was coming down the street and she has forbidden me to go skating there any more.

If they had benches around the park it would be alright. Will you please see somebody about it. There are lots of kids out here and most of them skate. Yours respectfully, W. K. J.

The above, while hardly a sporting affair, calls for our immediate attention.

Everybody wants to see the kiddies happy and if it is only a matter of a few benches it is safe to say that the great big city of Boston can well afford to instal some at once.

In spite of the cold weather of the last few days the youngsters have been out in force enjoying the smooth surfaces of the skating parks and ponds, but it is sad to picture some bright-eyed youngster, all set for a spin or a good game of shinny, unable to enjoy all this because there are no benches at the park.

The Triangle is the name applied by the youngsters to the Gibson Playground in Dorchester. It is situated between Dorchester avenue, Park street and Geneva avenue, and is a popular skating pond for the youngsters in the Fields Corner section.

We will call the attention of Messrs. Shea and Long of the Park Department to the above letter and feel safe in promising some quick action.

Bout With Ketonen Is Prize for Victor

The winner of the Gardner-Howard match at the Grand Opera H[illegible] tonight moves into direct line for a match with Waino Ketonen for the world's middleweight wrestling title, and as a result both Gardner and Howard will set a sizzling pace from the first drop of the hat.

This, coupled with the remarkable speed and aggressiveness of both men means that the fans will be kept on their feet cheering from beginning to end.

Howard figures that he can outspeed Gardner and promises to bring his dare-devilry into play and thus outguess Gardner in both attack and defense. Gardner, being as slouch himself, probably figures on doing something like that on his own account.

Both men are certainly looking fine and with the fans backed [illegible] ... with the slam-bang work of [illegible] ... Marco and McCarthy in the opening number it looks as if the fans who watch the show will be well repaid with a fine program of varied wrestling.

"WE force no one to buy it. They do so at their own risk. I myself have thousands of dollars of worthless stock in my safe. I have never complained."

The full force of Hodder's indignation went into his reply.

"I am not talking about the imperfect code of human justice under which we live, Mr. Parr," he cried. "This is not a case in which a court of law may exonerate you. It is between you and your God. But I have taken the trouble to find out, from unquestioned sources, the truth about the Consolidated Traction Company—I shall not go into details at length—they are doubtless familiar to you. I know that the legal genius of Mr. Langmaid is one of my vestry, made possible the organization of the company, and thereby evaded the plain spirit of the law of the State. I know that one branch line was bought for two hundred and fifty thousand dollars and capitalized for three millions, and that most of the others were scandalously over-capitalized. I know that while the coming transaction was still a secret, you and other gentlemen connected with the matter bought up large interests in other lines which you proceeded to lease to yourselves at guaranteed dividends which these lines do not earn. I know that the first large dividend was paid out of capital. And the stock which you sold to poor Garvin was no longer watered it never could have been anything but worthless. If in spite of these facts, you do not deem yourself responsible for the misery which has been caused if our conscience is now clear, it is my duty to tell you that there is a higher Court of justice."

The intensity of the fire of the punctuation had, indeed, a momentary yet visible effect in the banker's expression. Whatever the emotions thus lashed to self-betrayal anger, hatred—fear, perhaps, Hodder could not detect a trace of penitence; and he was aware, on the part of the other, of a supreme, almost spasmodic effort for self-control. The constitutional reluctance of Eldon Parr to fight openly could not have been more clearly demonstrated.

"Because you are a clergyman Mr. Hodder," he began, "because you are the rector of St. John's, I have allowed you to say things to me which I would not have permitted from any other man. I have tried to take into account your position, which is naturally restricted, your pardonable ignorance of what business men, who wish to do their duty by Church and State, have to contend with. When you came to this parish you seemed to have a sensible, a proportional view of things; you were content to confine your activities to your own sphere, content not to meddle with politics and business with which you knew, at first hand, how nothing about. The modern desire of clergymen to interfere in these matters has ruined the usefulness of many of them.

"I repeat, I have tried to be patient. I venture to hope still that this extraordinary outburst on your may not be permanent, but merely the result of a natural sympathy with the weak and unworldly. Unfortunately we are always to be found in a complex civilization. I can even conceive how such a discovery must have shocked you, temporarily aroused your indignation, as a clergyman, against the world as it is—and, I may add, any interest in your future welfare. impel me to make a final appeal to you not to ruin a career which is full of promise."

Curiously Hypnotized Him

The rector did not take advantage of the pause, a purely psychological curiosity hypnotized him to see how far the banker would go in his apparent generosity.

"I once heard you say, I believe, in a sermon, that the Christian religion is a leaven. It is the leaven that softens and ameliorates the hard conditions of life, that makes our relations with our fellow men bearable. But life is to contest, it is war. It always has been, and always will be. Business is war, commerce is war. Both among nations and individuals. Competition is around it. If a man does not exterminate his rivals they will exterminate him. Armies daily are being built and endowed with the spoils of war, and did not disdain the enemy. Even the churches accept the support and gifts of business men. I do not accuse them of hypocrisy. It is a recognition on their part that business men in spite of hard facts, are not unmindful of the spiritual side of life, and are not deaf to the injunction to help others. And when, let me ask you, could we, in the world's history more God charities than are around us? Institutions endowed medical research, for the conof deadly diseases, libraries, schools—men giving their fortunes for these things, the fruits of a life's work so laboriously acquired. Who can say that the modern capitalist is not liberal, is not a [illegible]?

"I dislike being personal, but you have forced it upon me. I dislike to refer to what I have already done in the matter of charities, but I hinted to you awhile ago of a project I have conceived and almost perfected for giving on a much larger scale than I have ever attempted." The financier stared at him meaningly. "And I had you in mind as one of the three men whom I should consult, whom I should associate with myself in the matter. We cannot change human nature, but we can better conditions by wise giving. I do not refer now to the set tlement homes, which I am ready to help make and me plain as the best in it [illegible] I have in mind a system to be carried out with the consent and aid of the municipal government, of play-grounds [illegible] places of recreation, and it pertains, for the benefit of the people, which will put our city in the very forefront of progress. And I believe, as a practical man, I can convince you that the betterment which is at all commensurate with desire can be brought about in no other way. Agitation [illegible] result in anarchy and misery for all."

Hodder's wrath, as he rose from his chair, was of the sort that appears incredible to us in the physical stature—the bewildering spiritual wrath which is rare indeed, and can be felt, if at all.

"Do I understand, Mr. Parr?" he said. "Now that I know the truth, I feel you frankly. I would fa poverty at persecution rather than consent to your terms. And I warn you once more not to flatter yourself that you can escape here, that you will not be called to answer for every wrong act you have committed in connection with your fortune. It will be a sad, sad business in all of it. But it takes no account. Wait I say we seem to [illegible] that I will find you, in the words of Last Instructions, that it will not profit you to gain the [illegible] and lose your own soul. You remind me that the church in old time accepted gifts from those [illegible] of war, and I will add of ruined homes and families. And the [illegible] to treat your own parable, grows full with terrible meaning. I will say only." Ah, yes, legally, perhaps. But that will not avail you. And the kind of [illegible] speak of to-day? If to my shame, once consented—Our Lord repudiates. It is none of his. I warn you, Mr. Parr, in his Name, first to make your peace with your brothers before you presume to lay another gift on the altar."

Under the withering condemnation of himself Eldon Parr sat motionless. His face was [illegible] of expression—if it ever had been to haunt Hodder long afterwards. An expression, indeed, which made the banker almost unrecognizable.

"Go," He Whispered

"Go," he whispered his hand trembling visibly as he pointed towards the door. "Go—I have had enough of it."

"I am sorry I have said one thing more than the perfect gentleman.

"I have found the woman whose power is to [illegible] my passion [illegible] and you [illegible] I [illegible] sure. But this [illegible] I [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Rules Governing Movie Player Identity Test

The Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser's new Moving Picture Players' Identification Test is a test of skill and endurance open to all readers of the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and nineteen cash awards will be given by these two newspapers to their readers who submit the largest percentage of correct identifications to the 120 pictures to be published in these two newspapers.

All employes of the Boston American, the Boston Sunday Advertiser, and their families, and all moving picture players and persons connected with the moving picture industry are absolutely barred from participating in the awards.

The Test will consist of 120 pictures of favorite moving picture players, to be printed two each day, in the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, first picture Sunday, December 19, 1920.

Participation in any other contest which has been run, which is now running or which shall be run by the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser will not debar anyone from entering this Test.

Every participant or any or all members of a family will be allowed to submit one set of pictures, but each set must contain only ONE identification to each picture, and no participant shall be entitled to more than one award, and not more than one award shall be given in any one family.

Each and every identification must be neatly written or printed on the coupons furnished by the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser or on a piece of some book form by itself, accompanied either by the pictures furnished by the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser, or a new or pencil copy thereof, and must have the name, residence, etc., of the participant on each identification blank.

Do not send your identification in "list" form, i. e., do not write identifications under one another on a piece of paper.

In case there are no complete sets of correct identifications, awards will be given to the persons submitting the largest percentage of correct identifications.

In case of a tie awards will be made on the basis of neatness, judgment and exact accuracy in spelling, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way, the tied participants will receive similar awards.

Under no circumstances should participants send in their identifications before the end of the Test, as any sent in before the last picture is printed will not be considered. KEEP your identifications from day to day and at the end of the Test arrange them in numerical order and then send them in all together at one time.

Time will not be a factor in making the awards. The first identifications sent in after the Test closes will stand no better than the last submitted.

All identifications must be delivered to the Boston American Movie Test Headquarters, at No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., either by mail or in person within specified time limit, which will be announced later.

All envelopes or packages containing identifications must be legibly addressed as follows: "Movie Test Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., P. O. Box 239," and each envelope or package must bear the name and address of the sender legibly written or stamped on the upper left-hand corner.

As all identifications will contain written or printed matter, if mailed, it is absolutely necessary that the package be fully treated at postal letter rates, as mail of this character goes to the postoffice as first class matter, the Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserve the right to refuse to consider any sets of identifications on which charges for postal delivery are not fully prepaid.

Participants who desire further information should address their inquiries to the Movie Test Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass. Questions will be answered, as far as possible, through the columns of the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser, if participants desire personal replies, they should enclose sufficient postage for such reply, or they MAY phone Main 2180, or call in person.

The Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserves the right to make any changes in, or additions to, these conditions that may be deemed necessary for fairly and properly conducting the test, and the decision of the Boston American Movie Test Editor on any questions which may arise will be accepted as final and conclusive. Each participant in a complete acceptance of all conditions now made or to be made.

FOKINE BALLET DRAWS LARGE AUDIENCE

Russian Dancers Arouse Great Enthusiasm at Symphony Hall Performance

Boston audiences have long been familiar with Fokine as a creator through the performances of the Ballet Russe some years ago.

At that time Nijinsky, Bolm and Massine appeared in parts created and made famous by Fokine in European capitals, but last night Fokine and Mme. Fokina made their first personal appearances here.

AUDIENCE ENTHUSIASTIC.

Judging from the enthusiasm of the audience that crowded Symphony Hall, admiration for Fokine is not limited to the conventional poses and ensembles that we so frequently see on the present stage.

Russian ballet dancing was at one time known for its posing and its pirouettes, which Adelaide Grace so successfully carried out.

Since then Isadora Duncan's more classical type of expression has influenced the ballet dances of Russia, their style, which is a natural development of years of painstaking and thorough training, has an added expression of emotion and an added charm that blends to create an artistic effect.

DANCES WITH FREEDOM.

The essential idea of dancing is that it should have meaning and reason. Fokine and Fokina express themselves with each part and purpose. Dancing is a display of emotion, and these dances give the impression of spontaneity, of graceful ease and freedom are prompted by actual feeling.

Fokine dances with freedom, with a keen sense of musical rhythm and spontaneity. He gives an impression of flying as he leaps and bounds, almost seeming to pause in midair.

"Escalina," by Tcherich, gives him the best opportunities for this type of dancing. In this he produces the suppleness and abandon the part demands while in Glazounow's "Papillerone" he brings out the grotesque and quickness that is associated with the folk dance.

EACH STEP EXPRESSES MOOD.

Fokine's every step expresses a mood. She does not, as so many dancers do, substitute herself for the character of her dance, but enters into it. She is infinite in her variety of pose and motion. Her technique is so perfect that it is unconscious of it. Every mood, every idea is expressed vividly but naturally, and it is impossible to catch any awkward angle or line or any restraint in achieving the desired effect.

PROVES DEPTH OF FEELING.

In Delibes' "Passepied" she dances with airiness and lightness, while in "Salut Russe" "Spring Song," which she created for her by Fokine, she brings out its poesy, imagination and suggestiveness.

In this and in the "Dance of the Seven Veils" from "Salome" she proves her depth of feeling and her skill in posing, while in the "Dance Tzigane" she swings out her spirit and vividness.

Dancing of this type makes us hopeful for the future of ballets in this country.

TROTZKY TO WED BALLET DANCER IN SPRING

Report 20-Year-Old Girl Exercises Great Influence Over Russian War Minister

Paris, Jan. 20.—Leon Trotzky, Russian War Minister, is engaged to Mlle Spanlovitova, ballet dancer well known in New York, according to very reliable reports from prominent Russian citizens, who have just arrived in Paris.

The engagement, it is added, has been officially announced in Moscow since October, although the first news of it came to Europe today.

The romance, according to the arrivals, started last Spring when the twenty-year-old blonde beauty first appeared in the Moscow Opera House in a secondary part in "The Rose Dream Ballet."

Trotzky, it is related, fell in love at first sight with the dancer and they became engaged shortly. Simultaneously it was arranged for the young artiste to be given the first roles in the productions in which she appeared.

A short while later Trotzky, it is declared, officially announced his intention of marry Mlle. Spanlovitova in the early Spring of the present year.

Those bringing the story to Paris declare that the young girl's influence over the Russian war lord is unlimited, and that although Trotzky has announced that his fiancee will leave the stage immediately following their marriage, it is reported that the dancer agreed only on the condition that they both quit Russia and settle in the United States, leading a private life.

REALTY PROFIT INCLUDED IN INCOME TAX

Brokers and Legal Fees May Be Deducted in Filing Federal Return

Millions of dollars were realized in 1920 from the sale of property, real and personal. Profits from such transactions is income, and must be carefully accounted for in the recipient's return, whether it be $10,000 on the sale of real estate or $10 on the sale of a second-hand automobile.

The return must show the kind of property on which the profit was realized; the name and address of purchaser; the price per or broker; the sale price; date acquired; cost of subsequent improvements, if any; depreciation subsequently sustained; and cost of market value as of March 1, 1913, if acquired prior thereto, and the consideration received for the property.

EXAMPLE CITED.

The profit, so determined, is subject to a further adjustment on account of additions or betterments added to the property and to depreciation sustained.

For example, real estate acquired in 1909 at a cost of $8,000, increased in value, and on March 1, 1913, was worth $12,000. Real estate is not subject to depreciation, and no improvements were made therein. For 1920 the property was sold for $17,000. The profit over the cost is $9,000, but the taxable profit is only $3,000.

The bureau has not formulated any definite method for determining the market value as of March 1, 1913. What that value was is a question of fact to be established by the taxpayer. Sales of other property in the neighborhood similarly situated on or about March 1, 1913, are evidential as to the March 1 value.

The opinion of experts, bid and asked prices for similar property and any other relevant evidence or facts with respect to the value on March 1, 1913, may be placed in the record.

MAY DEDUCT LEGAL FEES.

In the purchase and sale of real estate brokers' fees, commissions, lawyers' fees, recording fees, and like expenses connected with the purchase and sale are considered part of the cost and may be deducted from the selling price to arrive at profit.

If, in order to sell for a higher price, property is improved, or when a house is repainted or an automobile overhauled, the expense may be added to the cost.

Such items, however, if deducted from gross income when the expenditures were made, cannot legally be considered in arriving at the profit; or, in other words, cannot be allowed as a business expense and also as a part of the cost of the property.

The selling price of property includes notes, mortgages, securities or anything accepted as cash, and the profit must be included in income when received. Installment sales, involving a small initial payment, are governed by special treasury regulations.

The profit is apportioned to each installment and is reported for taxation as collected. Except where these special regulations apply to notes, mortgages and other deferred payments must be considered as if the entire amount was paid in cash.

DEDUCT BAD DEBTS.

If, in the latter instance, a note is found worthless, or if a deferred payment cannot be collected, the taxpayer, after exhausting every reasonable means of collection, may deduct the amount as a bad debt in his income tax return for the subsequent year. The sale of the property is regarded as a closed transaction and the collection of the notes as a new item.

Depreciation sustained on business property by reason of wear and tear must be considered in the computation of profit. For example, a taxpayer acquired a building in 1915 at a cost of $10,000 and sold it on January 1, 1920, for $15,000.

Assuming that 2 per cent. is a reasonable annual allowance for depreciation, the total allowance to the date of acquisition to date of sale would be $1,500. The profit to be returned in 1920 would be the difference between the cost, $10,000, less depreciation sustained, $1,500, or $8,500, and the sales price of $15,000. The profit of $6,500, so determined, is subject to the 1920 tax. And if the taxpayer has not claimed a deduction for depreciation in prior years, amended returns may be filed, including therein a deduction for depreciation of 2 per cent. on the cost of the building.

CHELSEA TRIO CHARGED WITH ROBBERY ATTEMPT

Harry Piner of No. 149 Essex street, Amos LeBlanc of No. 260 Broadway, and John McDonald of Essex street, all of Chelsea, were arrested and charged with conspiracy to break and rob Abraham Shankman of No. 84 Broadway, Chelsea. The men were identified by Shankman as the trio that held him up in broad daylight and tried to take a bundle he was carrying. McDonald is also charged with assault and battery upon Officer Cutler of Chestnut street, who came to Shankman's assistance. The cases against the men will come up next Wednesday for trial in the Chelsea District Court.

EUROPE NEEDS U.S. BUSINESS, SAYS HOOVER

No Amount of Charity Will Help, He Tells New York Merchants

New York, Jan. 20.—The only hope of ending world business depression and restoring the wheels of industry in America for full production is by "building up through no small process of business," the economic despond of Central Europe, Herbert Hoover told the Merchants' Association here.

He said neither governmental assistance by the United States nor charity upon the part of America would solve the present European difficulty, which is reflected here.

Hoover pointed out that while America was over supplied with foodstuffs and raw materials, with American farmers unable to dispose of their products at cost and the factories operating at curtailed pace, there are 400,000,000 people in Europe vainly recovering from the war, struggling up from political, social and economic chaos, with populations measureably underfed, with their factories unemployed out a minor portion of the time and with unemployment at greater than ours."

FARM INCOME BLANKS READY FOR APPLICANTS

Special forms for the reporting of farm incomes have been received and are now available on application at the Little Building, according to a statement today by John J. Mitchell, collector of internal revenue. They are to be attached to the individual income tax return and filed on or before March 15. Collector Mitchell points out that all farm income, from whatever source, must be reported, but that the person operating a farm for pleasure or recreation only is not designated as a farmer.

Wilson Veto to Check More Railroad Graft Is Just

President Wilson's veto of the joint resolution of Congress suspending the operation of the Clayton act is sound and right.

This law, forbidding directors and other officials of railroads to buy supplies from companies in which such railroad directors or officials were interested, was passed seven years ago.

It was not made effective at once, when passed, because it was recognized that many railroad officials were interested in private companies having contracts with the railroads, and time would be required to enable the railroad officials to quit one business or the other. During the war the operation of the law was suspended because the railroads were under government control.

It is amazing that the railroads, having got nearly all they asked from Congress in rates and privileges, should now ask relief for speculative railroad officials from the prohibition of the Clayton act. It is still more amazing that Congress should comply with such a request.

We are not attacking the operators of American railroads—the ablest men of their kind in the world—when we say that one of the evils under private management has been the graft permeating the purchasing departments of most great railroad systems.

Coal companies that made presents of stock to railroad officials had no difficulty in obtaining empty cars; printing companies in which railroad officials were stockholders got all the railroad's printing; advertising agencies in which railroad officials (or even their sons-in-law) were interested got all the railroad advertising; fast freight lines organized by the railroad officials were enabled to charge higher rates for freight because the private officials of the railroads "expedited" the car movements; and so on ad infinitum.

Graft was so interwoven in the management of the foremost railroad in the United States that for two generations nearly every high official became a millionaire in a few years. We know that there were a few railroads whose higher officials, like Mr. Ripley of the Atchison, had tried to cure the evil. But no one doubts that it is still rampant. Hence the necessity for a rigid enforcement of the Clayton act.

If the Mayor or an Alderman of a city, or a legislator or a Governor, should make official contracts, for his own private profit, with companies of which he was owner, he would be sent to jail, if found out.

But when the same thing was done by a railroad official, it was not only tolerated, but the official was envied and admired when he displayed the fruits of his ill-gotten gains in big and expensive houses, or in luxurious limousines.

As a rule no one has clamored more lustily against government ownership than the grafting private officials of railroads. Public ownership always meant an end to their graft.

One way to defeat or postpone public ownership was to make the public believe that their government is corrupt. As long as the people believed that, railroad officials who were faithless to their trust would be secure in their privilege to graft.

Government officials, though sometimes incompetent and inefficient, are seldom dishonest, while our higher railroad officials—with many noble exceptions—have been trained under a system of private ownership that taught efficiency but tolerated dishonesty.

For this reason Congress should accept Mr. Wilson's veto as sound.

Charges Big Interests Are Muzzling the Public

Professor Harry F. Ward of the Union Theological Seminary, New York, at a conference of the eastern section of the church league for democracy, made the charge that to his personal knowledge the big exploiting interests were conducting a quiet, but well-organized campaign, to bring the churches under their thumb. The campaign started after, and as the result of the publication of the report of the Interchurch World movement of its findings in the investigation which it made into the steel industry and into the causes and conduct of the great steel strike.

It will be remembered that a committee representing practically all the Protestant clergy of the country investigated the steel strike and made its report; that this report was kept in a pigeonhole for months until at last the clamor for it became so great that those clergymen who were startled at the findings and feared perhaps the effect of them upon church finances, were obliged to permit the report to be published. The report justified most of the claims of the strikers and very few of the claims of the employers. The report also found that Bolshevism, which the employers, as usual, declared to be the cause of the strike, had nothing to do with the strike.

Of course, a great body of American clergymen bent on discovering and reporting the truth to the American people are too dangerous to be left around loose and unmuzzled, so Professor Ward declares that the gentlemen in our industrial and commercial world, who have succeeded so splendidly in controlling the truth as it appears in the newspapers, are now trying to control it as it appears in the pulpit. Their method appears to be simple and old-fashioned. If a clergyman shows an independence they get to the local financial interests in his parish and have him warned or have the contributions to the support of his church cut off.

It is usually an effective method and causes nine-tenths of the clergymen to confine themselves to speculation concerning the future state while leaving the present state strictly alone.

Clergymen are human like the rest of us.

With the newspapers and pulpit silenced by the power of money, and free speech guzzled by the espionage law, with no means of telling the people the truth and with great armies of propagandists trained to feed them on lies, what chance has democracy in America if conditions are not soon changed?

Cheaper Fare for Revere and Chelsea Good Suggestion

The more we consider the recommendation of the Department of Public Utilities concerning the transportation difficulties between Boston and Revere Beach and Chelsea, the better we like them.

The commission suggests that the Elevated should take over the lines of the Bay State running between Chelsea, Revere and Boston and reduce the fare now charged to ten cents. This is good sense and is fair to the people of Revere and Chelsea.

The suggestion concerning the electrification of the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad and its entrance into Boston by way of a tunnel is also very interesting and important. If this can be done and can be done soon it would be a godsend to a very large section of our metropolitan district.

We hope that the commission will always be as constructive in its suggestions.

More Truth Than Poetry

At Parting

By S. E. KISER

NOW we will start upon our separate ways,
And try to find new pleasures and forget.
Others, perhaps, will give you welcome praise,
Others may learn to love you—and regret.

WHAT might have been is lost—for wrong or right;
Some hopes that you inspired I have resigned;
But do not think that I shall coddle spite,
Or cast away my faith in womankind.

I SHALL be glad sometimes; I shall perceive
The beauty of the Springtime blossom still;
I shall not sit in any nook and grieve,
Nor cease to have ambitions to fulfill.

BUT there will be a difference, after this;
When any eager wish of mine comes true,
And when Good Fortune cheers me, I shall miss
The joy of rushing with my joy to you.

I'LL not forget the honeymoon we had;
How sweet you were—or seemed, at least, to be,
I had no cause to doubt that you were glad
To cling with girlish trustfulness to me.

DO you remember how we strolled along
Secluded paths, in those enchanting days,
Our voices often blended in a song,
Our hearts united after long delays?

THOSE memories will dwell within my mind,
However wide our paths may be apart,
And you, perhaps, will sometimes be inclined
To let a tear or two spring from your heart.

WELL, may your bait be always cast where fish
Are eager for the hook! But I'll confess—
This as a word at parting—that I wish
The judge had made the alimony less.

Child Saved from Chinaman

An eleven-year-old girl has just been taken away from a Chinese husband.

Little Anna, who, as an infant was picked out of an ash can and later adopted from an asylum by a wretched woman of the slums, to be sold into white slavery as an Oriental's child wife, has been set free by the courts.

Anna, despite her youth, was worth no less than $700, it appears. Her Chinese husband, it is said, was gambling in futures—he stood to make a good profit on the transaction by selling Anna to some other Chinaman after she had reached maturity.

Startling revelations of the sordid secrets of Chinatown and of the traffic in white women which is carried on there appear in the Magazine Section of the Boston Sunday Advertiser on Sunday.

The police of Paris at last have captured the beautiful and daring girl who for months has terrorized the French capital at the head of a murdering band of Apaches. They believe that with her capture they have broken up the robber gang. The girl, Henriette Miffone, lies severely wounded in a hospital.

The story of this young woman, of good family and education, who deliberately sought the pathway of crime, is a horrifying and remarkable one. It appears Sunday in the Magazine Section of the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

The revelations of Audrey Munson, famous artists' model, who tells of life in the most famous studios of New York, continue this week in the Sunday Magazine Section. Readers who have read the preceding chapters will not wish to miss this week's instalment.

Paris is all excited over the declaration of independence recently made by Miss Duncan, young son of Isadora, the famous dancer. For years little Menalkus has been forced to live as his parents do—wearing Greek robes and letting his hair grow long, to the huge delight of the Paris youngsters who frequently reminded him that he had left his pants at home.

The other day Menalkus rebelled, ran away, sought the assistance of a friend and returned to the Duncan home clad in something snappy in men's clothing, long pants and all.

The whole story appears in the Magazine Section of the Boston Sunday Advertiser on Sunday.

Puritanism

WE are apt to be carried away by words. We use them without stopping to think what they mean.

One of these words is Puritanism.

It is most commonly these days used in a bad sense, and carries with it a flavor of intolerance, bigotry, fanaticism; even cruelty.

While it cannot be denied that the Puritans laid themselves open to be charged with showing such offensive qualities, yet they had another side which we often fail to consider.

The one priceless thing they possessed was self-mastery.

And it is this, and not any theory of self-indulgence, which is the foundation of liberty. For "liberty," said Georges Clemenceau, a great man of our own time, "is the power to discipline one's self."

It is because they had this power in such concentrated excellence that the Puritan blood has had such radiating dynamic force upon the American stock.

Say what you please of the Puritans, they were men—"he-men," as the Westerners put it.

That is, they were not weaklings or cowards. Neither were they conscienceless bandits.

They were followers of an ideal. We may not sympathize with the ideal they had; that makes no matter; it is far more vital to ask ourselves if we have any ideal that is better, or as good.

They did not come here to get rich. It was not fishing, farming or trading that lured them. They followed the gleam.

Their goal was never selfish, mean, or low. They sought character, manhood.

They were often harsh, but they were never grafters.

They had what this age lacks—conscience; although they had it so terribly that it was tragic.

Their ideals were never used as a cloak for envy, laziness and discontent, as is widely true among many modern movements with high-sounding propaganda.

Their religion was deadly earnest, and never a mask for hypocrisy.

Life with them was not an opportunity for pleasure, nor an occasion for complaint. "It is a grave affair," they said, "with which we are charged, and which we must conduct and terminate with honor."

If they despised art, literature and culture, it was not because they were engrossed in sensuality, but because their high-minded devotion to an ideal was so extreme as to become morbid.

"Men who believe," says Agnes Repplier, "that, through some exceptional grace of good fortune, they have found God, feel little need of culture."

We see now that their view of life, while noble and even heroic, was too narrow; their notion of salvation, a term which should include all agencies that can lift the soul of man out of beastliness into dignity, was not wide enough, and should have embraced all the spiritualizing influences of culture.

A wit has said that the Puritans' idea of hell was a place where everybody would have to mind his own business.

But, however we may be disposed to criticise them, however we may resent their too dominating conscientiousness, we should be vacant minded and petulant children, indeed, did we not recognize and revere the sterling worth of their character, the iron of their will and the sheer majesty of their fine devotion to the ideal.

What other nation can boast of so noble a band of founders?

BACHELORS! MARRY TO PROLONG LIFE

By Damon Runyon

Copyright, 1921, by the Star Company.

IF a man desires to live a long time, the first thing he should do is to get married. A married man lives much longer than a bachelor.

You do not need any figures to prove what I say. Look about you, run over the list of your acquaintances who have departed this life, and you will see that it is true. The reason is quite simple.

A bachelor lives at a much higher rate of speed than a married man, and pays less attention to his living. He drives along, haphazard, with no schedule and few stops.

A married man must slow down at once and take care where he is going and how. Marriage is no wild, cross-country charge, taking the ditches and the fences as they come. It is a circuitous route, with much studying of the road ahead to pick the smoother paths.

The craziest automobile driver I have ever known got married not long ago. He used to take the corners on one wheel when he was a bachelor, and it was always a good even money bet that the snow wouldn't fall on his back, but I notice that he now drives with extreme caution.

A married man must map out a regular schedule and stick to it. From this comes the regular hours, foreign to the bachelor, who has no set program in life, barring the demands of business. And the bachelor generally adjusts his business as soon as possible to fit in with the irregular outline of his existence.

A bachelor generally eats around restaurants and boarding houses, and, with all due respect to the cuisine of these establishments, the food is not always what it should be to keep the furnace of life well stoked up. Furthermore, a bachelor often eats without regard to the time for meals.

The married man gets the best food his purse affords, and his wife sees that it is well prepared, assuming that she is the normal American wife. He gets it at a certain hour, which is important.

The married man forms the habit of going to bed early and getting up early. The bachelor in eight cases out of ten, is a night hawk. If he is a man who has to work for a living, reporting at a set hour in the morning, he goes through at least ten years of his life constantly needing sleep.

A bachelor never gets fully caught up on sleep, unless he is an exceptionally methodical man, which bachelors rarely are. Thus his vitality is generally at lower ebb than that of the married man.

When a man gets sick, his wife puts him to bed and nurses him with loving care. When a bachelor gets sick he goes around combating his illness until it brings him flat on his back, and often with a start on him that the doctors cannot overcome.

A married man is more afraid of illness than a bachelor, because, with his responsibilities of wife and children, he realizes the handicap of being laid up if even for a short time. So he quickly complains, and receives attention, while a bachelor declines to acknowledge illness as long as possible.

This is largely because a bachelor hates the idea of taking to his bed in his lonely apartments. He misses the companionships of his accustomed haunts. A married man's haunts being his home, he has his companionships at all times, sick or well.

Incidentally, a bachelor is more exposed to sickness than a married man, because he goes to places where a married man infrequently visits. The bachelor has a high contempt for the most ordinary illness, which a wife is constantly impressing on her husband—rubbers, warm wraps and the like.

A doctor once told me that the mortality of bachelors from the ages of thirty to forty-five is 25 per cent.; of married men of the same ages, 18 per cent. For forty-one bachelors who attain the age of forty there are seventy-eight married men, and the difference, he said, is more striking as age advances.

At the age of sixty there are but twenty-two bachelors alive for forty-eight married men; at seventy years, eleven bachelors for twenty-seven married men, and at eighty years, for three bachelors there are nine married men.

I was citing these facts and figures to an old bachelor friend of mine last night, and he said:

"Well, maybe you're right, at that, but I've come to the conclusion that I'd rather be dead than married."

MILLIONS OF SUNS SEEN IN SPACE

By Edgar Lucien Larkin

Director of Mt. Lowe Observatory

A SUN, commonly called a star, is a giant mass of matter in a state of such intense electronic, atomic and molecular activity that energy radiates away in all directions in frigid space. When this energy hits matter so as to oscillate it at a certain rate, heat appears. If it hits nerve filaments in retinas of the eyes, we have a still more wonderful effect—light. Nobody knows how this energy is communicated through the optic nerve to the optic thalamus in the brain.

A cluster of suns is an aggregate of hundreds, thousands or millions, where they seem to be neighbors, nearer to each other than in space around about. If there are a few hundred suns they all can be seen and also photographed separately, the blackness of infinite space showing between them. Such a cluster may be somewhat in the form of a disk, whose diameter is much greater than its thickness, like a grindstone. But if the congeries of suns are arranged as a sphere or globe, several suns could be in a straight line drawn from the lenses of the telescope and telecamera; then only the first one in the row would be photographed.

Now suppose that there are many lines of these suns extending directly behind the first one, so close that the waves of energy of light merge somewhat. Thus the effect of space between is lost and a blur is spread over all the central regions of the cluster. There may be thousands or millions of suns thus arranged for they cannot be counted. But sparsely settled clusters show images of each sun on plates and they can be counted. The Pleiades cluster is an example. They can be seen separately even in an operaglass. But in the 100-inch mirror telescope, on Mt. Wilson, a number of images are photographed that are much nearer to each other, so minute that smaller telescopes cannot reveal them.

Another sparsely settled neighborhood is named the Bee-Hive. It is in the zodiacal constellation Cancer, and not far from the plane of the earth's orbit imagined to be expanded forever. It is just visible to the unaided eye as a pearl-colored patch in the blackness of cosmic space. The cluster in Perseus is a congeries of suns more numerous than in the Bee-Hive. Recently I secured a fine observation of the magnicent cluster in Sagittarius. This is one of the finest, and near the center. Estimates up to 50,000 suns has been made of this stupendous cluster.

But all who have ever seen the immense cluster in the constellation Hercules in a large telescope agree that it cannot be described in words. No lens can separate the minute points, each the image of a huge sun. The central imaged seem merged, but near the edges they can all be counted. All kinds of estimates have been made of the probable number from 50,000 to 200,000. A startling effect of blackness surrounds this superb congeries of suns. A comparatively bare region encircles the gigantic cluster, as if suns had been drawn away and massed in the central region.

A new sun suddenly appeared in the nebulous cluster 50 M. Scorpii, on May 25, 1860, and was watched on June 10. This sun may have burst forth in the cluster itself or far this side of it in the straight line of sight.

Upon coming to Lowe Observatory I was able to see in the distant southern horizon the magnicent cluster of suns named Omega Centauri. This exquisitely beautiful object could not be seen from my former observatory in Illinois. To behold this one object is worth a move from Illinois to California.

Go put a jet black velvet cloth on a table top; pour upon it 50,000 or 100,000 pure diamonds; darken the room, and then turn on a number of tungsten filament electric incandescent lamps. This would give some idea of the supernal beauty of this Southern cluster of glowing, flashing, blazing suns. It is in this constellation, the Centaur, that glows the nearest neighboring sun to our own. It is named Alpha Centauri, and its distance is known to be twenty-five and one-half trillion miles. The cluster is much farther away, how far, cannot be determined, for the base line used to form an angle, the diameter of the earth's orbit, 186,000,000 miles, as seen by an observer at the cluster, looking back this way, would be almost nothing.

Confidence in a torn string never kept a package together.

Selfishness, with all its avaricious eyes, can see no further than its nose, while Love, though blind, has always led the way to noble achievement.
